Mr. Coolidge Sees Hope
Awaiting the Baby

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

THE HIGH TARIFF question has two sides, and the much abused congressman, Will R. Wood, chairman of the Republican congressional committee, wants you to know it.

Our corn crop this year will be about two thousand one hundred million bushels. The price is high because drouht has cut the crop 600,000,000 bushels, but drouths hasn't hit the crop in Argentina and elsewhere.

Without the new tariff and the duty of 25 cents a bushel on foreign corn, Argentina would be selling corn here at 65 cents a bushel and American farmers would have to accept that price.

Thus, on corn alone the tariff makes a difference of $500,000,000 to the farmer.

The free trader may reply: "On the other hand, the American consumer must pay the $500,000,0000 so what difference does it make?" It makes much difference. The $500,000,000 goes to American farmers and American prosperity. A man would rather the business and profit went to his own brother than to a stranger.

AT THE LAMBERTH conference, 306 bishops of the Anglican church, gathered in England from all over the world, request the nation "to return to spirituality."

The next step is to define spirituality, remembering Voltaire's excellent advice, "Disfinissons nos termes."

What would be spirituality for a Congo native dancing around a dead hippopotamus might be bestiality for the Archbishop of Canterbury.

Surprising to all, and shocking to many non-Anglican bishops, is the fact that bishops at Lamberth voted 193 to 67, in secret conference, withdrawing objection to birth control.

It is no longer sin, from their point of view, to refuse to have a baby if you don't want one. That is good news for women with seven or eight children alive and sickly, two or three dead, and a drunken husband.

MR. COOLIDGE, writing every day for The Chicago Herald and Examiner and other papers, observes the educational effects of modern inventions. "Now all kinds of cars with people from all sections are circulating all over the country. Another important influence is the radio. A third is the motion picture. These influences have supplemented the schoolhouse in banishing ignorance."

On the other hand, these new inventions do not appear to have increased mental concentration. It is what the individual THINKS in solitude, not what he gazes at in a crowd, that makes him worth while.

Milton, Roger Bacon in his blindness in prison, Bunyan in jail, Voltaire and Mirabeau in the prison of the Bastille, developed excellent ideas.

Life should not be spent with the radio turned on or the automobile engine "purring" always.

Doctors and mothers are interested in a gathering at Glamis, Scotland where the Duchess of York married to a son of King George, awaits anxiously the arrival of her second child, supposed to be nine days "overdue."

For nine days Mr. Clynes, home secretary of Great Britain, has been waiting at the castle to certify to the birth of the royal infant. Four physicians also are waiting, chief among them Sir Henry Simson, noted obstetrician and expert in the "Caesarian section."

315 Adrift From Sinking South Sea Liner

RESCUE SHIPS RESPONDING TO CALL FOR HELP

Passengers and Crew in Small Boats After Accident Floods Steamer.

ADRIFT IN ISOLATED SEA

Officials Believe All Will Be Saved; Mishap Due to Broken Shaft.

By International News Service

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., Aug. 16—In small boats 165 passengers and 150 memebrs of the crew of the Union Steamship company liner Tahiti were today awaiting rescue in isolated South Sea waters.

An order to abandon the sinking liner, which was enroute from New Zealand to San Francisco, was given, according to wireless advices received by the Matson Navigation company here, from their liner Ventura, one of three vessels rushing to the assistance of the passengers and crew of the Tahiti.

In abandoning the ship, other vessels were urged to hasten to the rescue of the 315 souls adrift hundreds of miles from the nearest island.

Wireless Message Received

Captain Mayor of the Ventura wirelessed:

"Tahiti broke Shaft. Flooded No. 3 and 4 holds and engine room.

"Stated order to abandon ship given at 3 a. m., (San Francisco time) Saturday and appealed to Ventura and the Norwegian ship Penybryn to hurry. Penybryn nearest to her and should reach her by daylight Saturday." San Francisco time Sunday South Sea time.)

However, the Ventura was proceeding at full steaming speed to the scene of the disaster to assist in the rescue.

Hind, Rolph and Company, agents here for the Union Steamship Company, expressed confidence that the rescue of the drifting boats of the Tahiti would be effected.

Sea Conditions Favorable

They pointed out that the South seas at this time of the year are usually calm and said an experienced crew and exceptionally competent officers were available to man the boats.

They believed that the abandonment of the ship was an orderly one, pointing out that the ship remained afloat probably two days or more after her damaged shaft caused the flooding of her holds and her engine room.

They were of the opinion that the passengers and crew had been ordered to the boats when it became certain that the rising waters could not be stemmed and that ample time was given all to be safely placed in the small boats with which the liner was adequately equipped.

The Tahiti, twin screw steel liner, is one of the largest operating between San Francisco and the South Pacific. She is 460 feet long with a 55-foot beam. Built in Glasgow in 1904, formerly known as the Port Kingston, she is registered in London and flies the British flag.

From messages received it was estimated that the ship has been tossing on the Pacific since Thursday night. Few vessels ply that particular neighborhood.

SIR THOMAS LIPTON RECEIVES WELCOME

Noted Sportsman Arrives from England in Quest of Yachting Honor.

By International News Service

NEW YORK, Aug. 16—Sir Thomas Lipton, one of the world's greatest sportsmen, arrived here today aboard the Leviathan on yet another crusade for the coveted America's cup, emblematic of international yachting superiority, held for the last 79 years by the United States.

The 81-year-old British multimillionaire yachting enthusiast appeared more feeble than on any of his previous pilgrimages in quest of the trophy. But his blue eyes still twinkled merrily under his yachting cap, and hope burned high in his heart for victory.

"Shamrock V is a good boat," Sir Thomas said. "I think she will do the trick this time.

"I think it will be a good race, and may the best boat win. But if I do lose, I'll be back as soon as I can for another try."

The veteran yachtman was transferred from the Leviathan to the municipal tug Macom at quarantine, and escorted to the battery by the mayor's reception committee to accompaniment of the usual demonstration by fireboats and other vessels in the harbor. Brass bands hurled stirring airs to a fog-cloaked sky as Sir Thomas disembarked from the Macom at the Battery, taking his seat in an official car for a triumphal parade.

NEW G. O. P. HEAD ASSAILS DEMOCRATS

Lucas Charges Interference with Hoover Program for Employment Aid.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16—Taking office today as executive director of the Republican national committee,

ROBERT H. LUCAS

Robert H. Lucas of Kentucky issued a statement charging Democratic leaders with blocking administration business and unemployment relief to preserve depression as a campaign issue.

"The Democratic leaders," he said, "put their party in direct opposition to every effort made by the nation's chief executive and his administration to restore business and provide employment for all the people. Having selected the natural misfortune of the nation—the suffering of the unemployed—as a campaign issue for 1930, the Democratic leaders could not lend their support to any corrective measures without depriving their party of a battle cry for the campaign.

"Strategy" Charged

"And the country has continued to suffer—business is slow to recover—workers walk the streets looking for work while the Democratic strategists confer and consult and issue statements, all the while fearing an improvement in business before the election. They hold to the fallacious idea that if things will just remain as they are until election day, the Democrats will secure control of congress.

The Lucas statement—the opening gun of the Republican national organization's participating in the fall election campaigns—compared the Democratic party to a "quack" and the Republican organization to the "old family physician" needed to deal with a serious illness. The new director, whose task as commissioner of internal revenue was surrendered to David Burnet of West Virginia, simultaneously with taking over the Republican office, charged the Demo-

FIND RECORDS OF GANG GRAFT

Zuta Deposit Box Discloses Payments to Judges, Police and Politicians.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 16—Carefully preserved records of a slain gang leader were made public by the state's attorney's office last night, showing enormous receipts from liquor, gambling and vice interests on one side of the ledger and substantial disbursements to judges, politicians and police on the other.

The cancelled checks, notes and ledger sheets of Jack Zuta, killed in a Wisconsin dance hall recently, were found in a secret safe deposit box yesterday by investigators for the state's attorney's office assigned to solve the slaying of Jake Lingle, Tribune reporter.

During the day, prosecutors refused to divulge the secrets they had found. Late last night they relented and handed newspapermen photostatic copies of what they said were only a small part of the Zuta records.

Officials' Names Listed

The published records included the following items:

Cancelled checks and notes aggregating $5,500 in which appear the name of a municipal court judge who has been on the bench for many years.

A cancelled check for $250 made

MAN SHOT WHILE CLEANING RIFLE

John Gates in City Hospital with Bullet in Abdomen; Condition Serious.

John Gates, 35, of 210 Edwards street, is in a serious condition in City hospital as the result of being accidentally shot in the abdomen today at 10 a. m. while cleaning a .22 calibre rifle at his home.

The gun slipped to the floor and the trigger was released, sending the bullet into Gates' abdomen. He was operated upon at 2:30 p. m. in an effort to remove the bullet.

Gates, who has been out of work since March, was cleaning the rifle preparatory to making a hunt for groundhogs along the Scioto river west of the city.

He was taken to the office of Dr. A. A. Starner, where an X-ray showed the bullet to have lodged in the pelvic cavity. Later he was removed to the hospital in Gunder's ambulance for the operation.

Gates is married and has three children, Marie, 10; Margaret, 6, and John, 5.

Gustave Frohman Passes Away at Home; Was 76

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 16—Gustave Frohman, 76, retired theatrical manager and brother of Daniel and the late Charles Frohman, died last night at his home, after a month's illness.

It was Gustave Frohman who induced both of his brothers to enter the theater business after he himself had gone into it as a boy of 17, and all three rose to great prominence. Charles went down on the Lusitania. Gustave retired 12 years ago. Daniel, the eldest, still conducts his business.

FLIERS GETTING NO FINANCIAL RETURNS

Jackson and O'Brine Still Sailing Smoothly, After 624 Hours.

By The Associated Press

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 16—Dale Jackson and Forest O'Brine still were adding hours to their sustained flight record today, and Bill Pickens, their manager, still was complaining about what he called meager financial returns harvested by Messrs. Jackson, O'Brine and Pickens.

Thus far Pickens had been able to close but four contracts totaling about $1,800 for the fliers, and this comprises "their sole reward" except for $7,000 they will receive from an oil company whose products they are using, Pickens complained.

One of St. Louis' largest theaters will give a midnight show tonight for the benefit of the Jackson-O'Brine exchequer.

Today was the 27th in the air for Jackson and O'Brine in the monoplane Greater St. Louis, apparently they were not nearly so worried as their manager on the ground. The only complaint that had come from them was that "the air surely is rolling."

The pilots still had given no indication of when they would land but have promised to "give sufficient notice" of an intended landing for spectators to assemble at Lambert-St. Louis Field, over which they are flying.

Mechanics at the field today still said they were unable to detect any faltering in the Greater St. Louis' motor.

At 8:11 a. m. today (Marion time) the Greater St. Louis had been in the air 624 hours, more than 70 hours longer than the previous record for sustained flight.

R-100 ARRIVES HOME, VICTOR OVER STORMS

Achievement Regarded as Proof of Safety of Voyages Across Sea.

CROSSES IN 57 HOURS

Speed of 92 Miles Attained; Slowed Down at Times by Headwinds.

By The Associated Press

CARDINGTON, Eng., Aug. 16—Through terrific storms that tested her mettle and proved her seaworthiness the British dirigible R-100 today completed her voyage to Canada and back and was moored safely to her home mast at 6:02 a. m. (Marion time) without incident.

The world's largest lighter than air craft twice crossed the Atlantic ocean in a span of 3,287 miles along the great circle route and added to her voyage the mileage from St. Hubert field, Montreal to Ottawa, Toronto and return.

Besides displaying remarkable speed capabilities, the bulky airship conclusively demonstrated her mighty strength by riding out wind and storm in the latter part of her home run, to the immense satisfaction of her designer and the officers and passengers on board.

Attains High Speed

The dirigible left Montreal at 8:28 p. m., (Marion time) Wednesday. Following the great circle route almost without deviation, a speed up to 92 miles an hour was attained. When headwinds buffeted her, the R-100 slowed down to 12 or 16 miles an hour, but rode steadily on under perfect control.

The time of crossing was approximately 57 hours, according to an official announcement.

Cardington, despite the bad weather, turned out in force to greet the air adventurers. The R-100 dropped her mooring cable at 5:30 a. m., after circling the airdrome and was fastened to her mast 32 minutes later.

One tragic incident marred the return of the voyagers. Edward Lill, a prominent member of the Chipping, Solbury district council, fell dead while watching the R-100 as crew men tied her to the mast.

Most of the spectators dispensed with all formality and lay flat on their backs on the ground, the better to see what was going on above them.

Proof of Safe Travel Seen

Passengers and crew were unanimous in their belief that the trip had proved beyond question the feasibility of trans-Atlantic commercial airship communication.

That the giant ship rode smoothly through a 75-mile an hour gale with no discomfort to those on board was cited by passengers as the best evidence of her stability. A brimming glass of water, placed on a table in the cabin of the R-100 before the departure from Montreal, did not spill a drop all the way across the Atlantic.

The R-100 passengers acquired a sense of absolute security within a few hours after the start of the voyage. The ship average a speed approximately three times greater than that of the fastest of ocean liners. Once, aided by a southwest gale, she attained a pace of 92 miles per hour.

Suspect Incendiary Plot in Swift, Armour Fires

By The Associated Press

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Aug. 16—An incendiary plot was suspected by authorities as a second big downtown fire virtually destroyed the Swift & Co. plant early today, 48 hours after fire had destroyed the Armour & Co. building adjoining it.

The cause of both fires remained a mystery, though Fire Chief Harry Callan said he believed they were incendiary.

The loss in the Swift blaze was estimated by the management at $175,000. Loss in the first fire was $150,000.

DETAILS OF PEN FIRE INQUIRY KEPT SECRET

Officials Convinced Disaster Was of Incendiary Origin, Is Report.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 16—Authorities investigating the tragic Ohio penitentiary fire of four months ago when 320 prisoners, locked in their cells, met death, today continued their refusal to discuss their findings or to announce what new evidence they had discovered.

Two convicts, removed from the penitentiary to city jail Thursday night, were being questioned as to their knowledge of the cause of the fatal blaze. The prisoners, James H. Yeager and Bernard K. Campbell, Cuyahoga county pickpocket, were taken to the city jail at the request of the state fire marshal. No charges were placed against them.

While great secrecy surrounded the investigation, it was known the fire marshal's agents were firm in the belief that the penitentiary holocaust was of incendiary origin.

Different Theories

Some authorities maintained their belief that the fire started from crossed electric lighting wires, while others held to the conviction that the blaze was started by a group of convicts—

MAN WITHOUT GUN ROBS BANK IN LIMA

Note Threatening To Kill Gets $400 for Lone Hold-up Man.

By The Associated Press

LIMA, O., Aug. 16—A robber, working lone-handed and apparently without a gun, held up the South side branch of the Lima Trust company at noon today and escaped with $400.

The man appeared at the bank just ahead of the Saturday rush, walked up to a cage where C. C. Thomas, acting manager, was counting change and shoved a note through the window.

"Hand over all the money or I'll shoot to kill," the note read.

Only the manager and two bookkeepers were in the bank. Thomas nervously gathered up the currency around him and handed it to the robber. With both hands the man stuffed it into his pockets and fled. As he ran Thomas saw that he did not have a gun.

Thomas later was placed under a physician's care. He was suffering from shock as a result of his experience.

COURT RULES AGAINST ALLER IN INJUNCTION

County Court Reversed in Paving Decision as Order Is Dissolved.

FURTHER DELAY LIKELY

Attorneys for Contractor Say Case Will Be Carried to State Tribunal.

The Main street paving case today became further complicated when the court of appeals, third appellate district, dissolved an injunction against the city in the latter's efforts to award the contract for the work to P. Drake & Son.

Attorneys for Llewellyn L. Aller, whose injunction petition first was granted by common pleas court, announced they would carry the case to the state supreme court, thereby further postponing a start on the paving of the street, which for the past month has been torn up at various spots in anticipation of the paving work.

Claims Low Bid

The injunction was granted last month by common pleas court on grounds that the city abused its discretionary power in awarding contracts by not giving the job to Aller, low bidder for the work. Aller's bid of approximately $50,000 included the same work as the $50,000 proposal of the Drake firm, which was awarded the contract. The unsuccessful bidder also included in his bid an $1,800 item for sanitary catch basins not included in Drake's proposal.

In its decision, received today at the office of Clerk of Courts Everett B. Grigsby, the district court ruled that a court cannot remedy a controversy similar to the Aller case, as long as the state law endures in its present form. The law holds that public contracts must be awarded to the lowest and best bidder. The court ruling, in effect, holds that the city officials were permitted to use their discretion as to selection of the "best bidder."

Aller's attorneys contended that their client was the lowest bidder while the city of Marion, in its defense, claimed that it did not consider him to be the best bidder. Judge George B. Scofield of common pleas court ruled that the city would be justified in its action if Aller's reputation as a contractor could be proven unsatisfactory, but witnesses for the city, in attempting to prove Aller unsatisfactory as a contractor, were unable to convince the court and the injunction order resulted.

Further Delay Likely

Work on paving the street was to have been started early this summer but litigation resulting from the injunction proceedings has held up the job. Meanwhile, the street, which is a principal thoroughfare and a part of two state highway routes, remains torn up at spots and is unsatisfactory for automobile traffic.

The firm of Ochs & Roller is counsel for Aller while the city has been represented by City Solicitor Carter M. Patton and Assistant Solicitor John Wiedemann. William P. Moloney represented the interests of the Drake firm.

Nature's Giants

Will Rogers Special

MINDEN, Nev., Aug. 16—Just coming through that Yosemite park this morning and passed those giant redwood trees, Fred Stone proposed that there is where these tree sitters ought to be located.

And say, you talk about a mountain just composed of one solid rock, why it's right in there. Coolidge's 500 words of Republican history of America would get lost on this boulder. Why, this rock is big enough to reproduce a Hiram Johnson anti-treaty speech.

John W. Davis is in the park somewhere and the rangers are looking for him. They don't allow dogs or Democratic candidates in there. Yours,

Will Rogers

Well, Says Will, Those Southern Republicans Have Returned to the Fold of Democracy as Was Expected

Politicians Are Hard Lot for Presidents To Satisfy, Rogers Finds.

BY WILL ROGERS

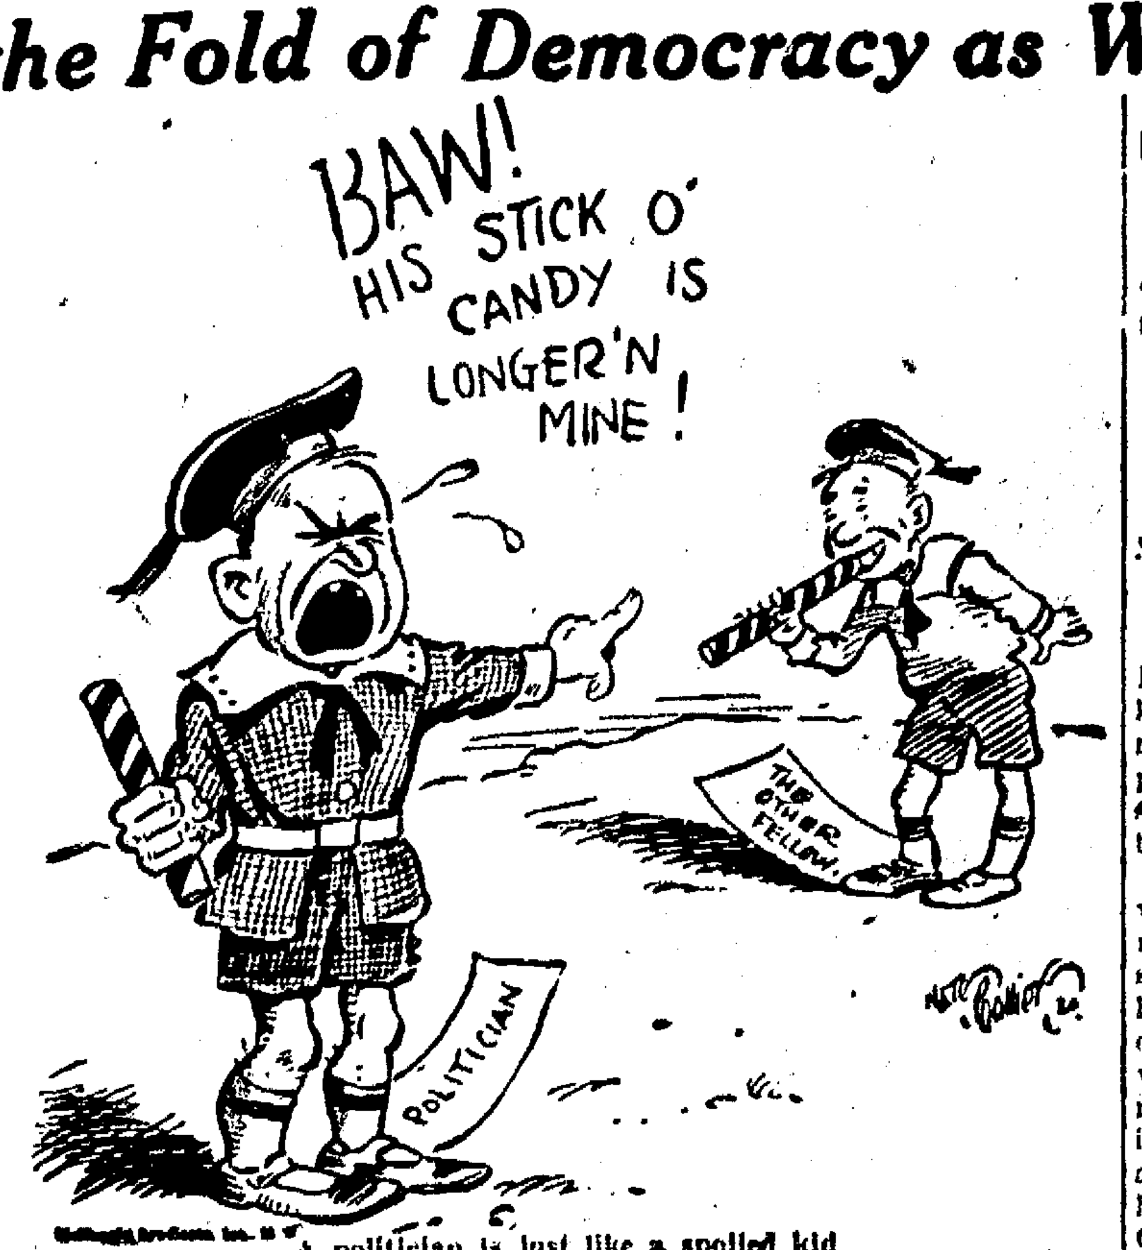
WELL all I know is just what I read in the papers. And outside of the thermometer reports, there just aint much in the newsprint nowadays. This heat thing accompanied by drouth has had everybody pretty bad scared up. Mr. Hoover didnt go away on his vacation as expected. He got right after it. Course there is not much a man can do when its heat thats bothering us. He can advise everybody to sit in the shade, and avoid the sun as much as possible. Then if its rain they need why advise them to raise crops that dont need much rain.

Kansas had an election a week or so ago, and Mr. Hoover seemed mighty pleased when his backer from there was nominated by a big majority. It was thought that Kansas on account of being a sort of an Amateur Farming State might go against the Administration because the heat had spoiled the crops, but they didnt, they voted for a good friend of mine, Henry Allen. (Well he is a friend of Hoover too.) Henry is an old Crony of William Randolph White, only Henry gets elected. Henry had been in Washington as a stop gap Senator and evidentally did pretty good. He was about the best dressed Senator there. Course thats not much of an accomplishment, as he could be that and still be taken up for indency among good Society.

Southerners Turn

So take it all in all it looks like Mr. Hoover is going into the late summer pretty well intrenched. Course the Southern Republicans have broke out against him, which would be expected, for there must be something the matter with a Southerner that would be a Republican, so they are naturally in the observation ward all the time anyway. There is some Guy down there named Mann, and he hasent got quite all the appointments that he expected for his Campaign money and he is out for The Presidents scalp in 32. But by that time maby Mr. Hoover will apoint him on some Commission and he will be all O. K. again. A Politician is just like a spoiled kid. If he feels that his stick of candy is not the longest why he will let out a yap that will drown out the neighborhood.

Mr. Coolidge is still going along, knocking out his 150 words a day. I am sorry I ever started that idea of writing in a little dispatch every day on current events. We will have everybody in the world trying it before long. But he has had some mighty nice reading, and some sound advice. 'Not that anybody is interested in advice whether its sound or not. In fact the sounder it is the less it's received. But he has done a good job for Mr. Coolidge, and I hope he keeps it up. Course it will be against him if he ever wants to run for anything, but there is no job that pays as good as it does, so why would anyone want to run for anything. No Columnist was ever elected to anything any time, any place.



BAW! HIS STICK O' CANDY IS LONGER'N MINE!
THE OTHER FELLOW
POLITICIAN

A politician is just like a spoiled kid

Has Its Good Points

This conducting a column is considered a kind of a low grade type of human endeavor. It's not classed among what might be called the Arts. It's just a kind of a stop gap to keep the Cayote from the doorstep, and as a dignified profession its sorter null and void. It's just sorter in the papers to break your jump on the way over to the advertising pages. But while it does not bring home the Literary praise it does fetch in some buckwheat cakes accompanied by bacon. It can be sneered at till meal time; then it has its good points.

There has been a good deal of trouble in the Dakotas about the history that Mr. Coolidge was supposed to write on a rock. It was to run 500 words and give the history of America and still not go into details. Well 500 words don't allow you much history. Course we never had much history, but like all 'Nations we think we have. While you can't trace our Ancestors back any further than you can trust a Congressman, why we naturally think we are saturated with "Tradition" when as a matter of fact it's only payments on objects that we are immersed in.

Too Much Republicanism

Well the Sculptor dident like the history that our Ex President had cooked up so he made as we say in the eighth art. (the Movies) why he made some re-takes on the manuscript. It seems that Mr. Coolidge ahd with an eye to future Campaigns given our History from a Republican standpoint. There had been Democrats engaged in our history but only in the capacity of Villans. We had reached our present state of taxation by the far sightedness of the Republican organizations. Well this Gutsom Borglum, who is a foreigner by birth, but an Atlanta Georgian by argument, he had studied his history of our land from the standpoint of Stone Mountain and Major Cohen, and Congressman Upshaw. He believed that Lee, Davis and Jackson participated in our early escapades, while Mr. Coolidge took the view that we had reached our present indebtedness by the sold aid of Grundy's the Reeds, the Lodges, and the Vares. He had taken his history of America from the Congressional Record, while Gutsom wanted his from the Atanta Cousitution. Coolidge believed that Jefferson was a fictitious Character, and that the income tax was entirely due to Alexander Hamilton, (the inventor of a time lock safe.)

Well poor Dakota didont know what it was all about, all the interest they had in the matter was to furnish the Mountain. They just wanted something that a Tourist could read, or have read to him. In fact the more controversy the more would come to read. What constitued our early history dident mean a thing to my old Friend Beulow and his co-horts. The Dakotas just said "we got the rock. Print an Aimee McPherson sermon on it, just so somebody will burn out his break bands to come and see it". If they leave the Coolidge version on there, they should advertise it.

Kelly-Springfield Tires
Every Car Owner CAN afford Kellys

Many people still have the impression that Kelly-Springfield tires cost more than other makes. This assumption is a natural one but it is not justified by the facts.

The retail price of a Kelly is, and has been for years, exactly the same as the retail price of any one of a dozen makes that from the standpoint of quality never have ranked with Kelly.

Regardless of what make you buy, you will pay as much for it as you would pay for a Kelly.

Between 35 and 40 Knights Templar and Families To Be Among 20,000 at Grand Conclave Sept. 23, 24, 25; Huge Parade of Members with 40 Bands Featured.

Between 35 and 40 Knights Templar and their families and friends from Marion will attend the eighty-eighth grand conclave of the Knights Templar of Ohio to be held Sept. 23, 24 and 25 in Cleveland. The city, which has not been host to the Knights for nine years, is preparing to entertain 20,000 visitors, nearly half of them belonging to the conclave.

The most spectacular event of the meeting will be the grand parade, Wednesday afternoon, Sept. 24, when approximately 9,000 uniformed Knights Templar, with more than 40 bands will form a procession that will require three hours to pass the reviewing stand. At the conclusion of the first part of the parade all the bands will combine into one huge organization and all the Knights will be asembled into a massed formation 30 abreast. All colors and standards of the 79 commanderies of the state will be grouped at the head of the formation followed immediately by a group of Knights forming a passion cross with a second group forming a triangle. The parade will be reviewed by the Right Eminent Sir Robert L. Queisser, Ohio grand commander.

BISHOP WARREN·L·ROGERS

ROBERT·L·QUEISSER

Wednesday night Cleveland's great public auditorium will be the scene of the grand ball a feature of the occasion being a brilliant exhibition drill by the world-famous team of Detroit Commandery No. 1 whose members will be special guests of the Ohio Knights.

The program includes receptions, the grand ball, the parade, special trips to points of interest in the city and presonally conducted tours over the new terminal development which includes the new Union station and tower.

Among those attending the conclave will be the Right Rev. Warren Lincoln Rogers, Bishop Coadjutor of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Ohio, Grand Prelate of the Grand Commandery of Ohio Knights Templar. Awards will be presented to commanderies having the most past commanders in line, the one showing the greatest man mileage, the one bringing the greatest number of women guests, the one accompanied by the largest band and second largest band in which only musicians who are commandery members will be counted, the one having the largest percentage of its membership in line during the grand parade, and personal prizes will be presented to the tallest Sir Knight, the shortest, the heaviest and the lightest.

BUTTER, POTATOES IN PRICE ADVANCE

Commodities Take Spotlight in Week's Provision Market News Here.

Boosts in the retail price of both potatoes and butter headlines the action on the Marion provision market during the last week. Butter jumped two cents a pound to retail at 46 to 51 cents a pound after selling two cents below the retail price of other cities for several days. It is still selling one cent under the price being obtained for the same commodity in Cleveland and other large cities.

The failure of local farmers to furnish an adequate supply of the commodity to grocers caused potatoes to be boosted slightly during the week. It is probable that they will again drop to their former level as soon as the crop begins to come onto the market in larger quantities. They are selling now at 35 to 65 cents a peck.

Several additions were made to the products being sold locally during the week. Canning pickles, pimentos, preserving tomatoes and Indiana pinkmeat melons all made their appearance.

A local supply of bananas caused the price of this product to drop from eight and nine cents a pound to seven and eight cents. It is expected that they will again go up as soon as the local supply is exhausted and a new supply is shipped in.

You Break It—We Fix It. Marion Welding Co., 132 Oak st.—Adv.

The Quickening Spirit

A SERMONETTE
BY REV. W. MARTELL GEORGE
Pastor of Wesley M. E. Church

"And you that He quickened who were dead in trespasses and in sins." Ephesians 2:1.

PAUL lived in a day when the pagan world was at the zenith of her power. He saw the world under the sentence of death, given over to a reprobate mind, full of corruption, vanity, pride, lust, licentiousness and stagnation but he sees hope in the Gospel of Christ.

1. The quickening spirit—Jesus Christ is the Quickening Spirit that transforms life, saves from the power of sin and makes a new creature in Christ Jesus. 2 Cor. 5:17. The Christian becomes a sharer in the Divine Life. Even now the urge of life is in travail to bring to birth the Sons of God and a new race. The Quickening Spirit is the only experience that can lift us up out of the clutches of sin and degeneracy to a new level of life and experience.

2. The quickened soul has a new experience in relation to others.—This is the world's greatest brotherhood. Love breaks down every barrier of race, color or creed and gives a fellowship that is world wide. "Where there is neither Greek nor Jew, circumcision nor uncircumcision, Barbarian, Scythian, bond nor free; but Christ is all, and in all." Col. 3:11.

3 The quickened soul has power.—Souls that have been broken by the power of sin, are restored by the Quickening Spirit. The Impotent receive strength to carry on in the work of the Kingdom of Christ. The power of speech is restored and their tongues become aflame with the message of redeeming love. "Ye shall receive power after that the Holy Spirit is come upon you; and ye shall be witnesses unto me in Jerusalem, and in all Judaea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth." Acts 1.8.

4 The quickened soul is made free.—A true relationship with Christ brings freedom. In the natural world there are many limitations, such as tradition, public opinion, custom fashion, etc. In the spiritual realm there is freedom. Paul said, "I am made all things to all men, that I might by all means save some." 1 Cor. 9.22

BANK CLEARINGS TAKE DROP HERE

Tuesday Sets High Mark for Week Here with Total of $88,710.79.

Bank clearings in Marion for the week ending Thursday slumped considerably under the clearings of the preceding week. The total clearings for the week just passed were $405,156.89 and for the previous week, $523,884.10, a decrease for this week of $118,527.21.

The clearings for both the high and low day of this week were lower than last. The low for last was $51,945.37, this amount being cleared on Wednesday The low for this week came on Thursday when clearings mounted to only $49,640.78, a decrease for the low of this week of $2,304.59.

The high of last week came on Friday when a total of $129,390.42 was cleared. The high this week was on Tuesday when clearings totalled $88,710.79, a decrease for this week of $40,679.63.

The week's clearings are the lowest of any week in the last two months.

Building Permits Take Slight Slump in Week

After a boom due mostly to the lack of a city zoning ordinance the number of building permits for the construction of filling stations slumped this week. Notwithstanding the slump there were a greater number issued this week than is usually the case. The total value of the service station permits for the week is $17,000. There were permits issued for seven stations.

Besides the permits for the erection of filling stations two other permits were given with a total value of $2,150.

Officers Are Elected by Marseilles Group

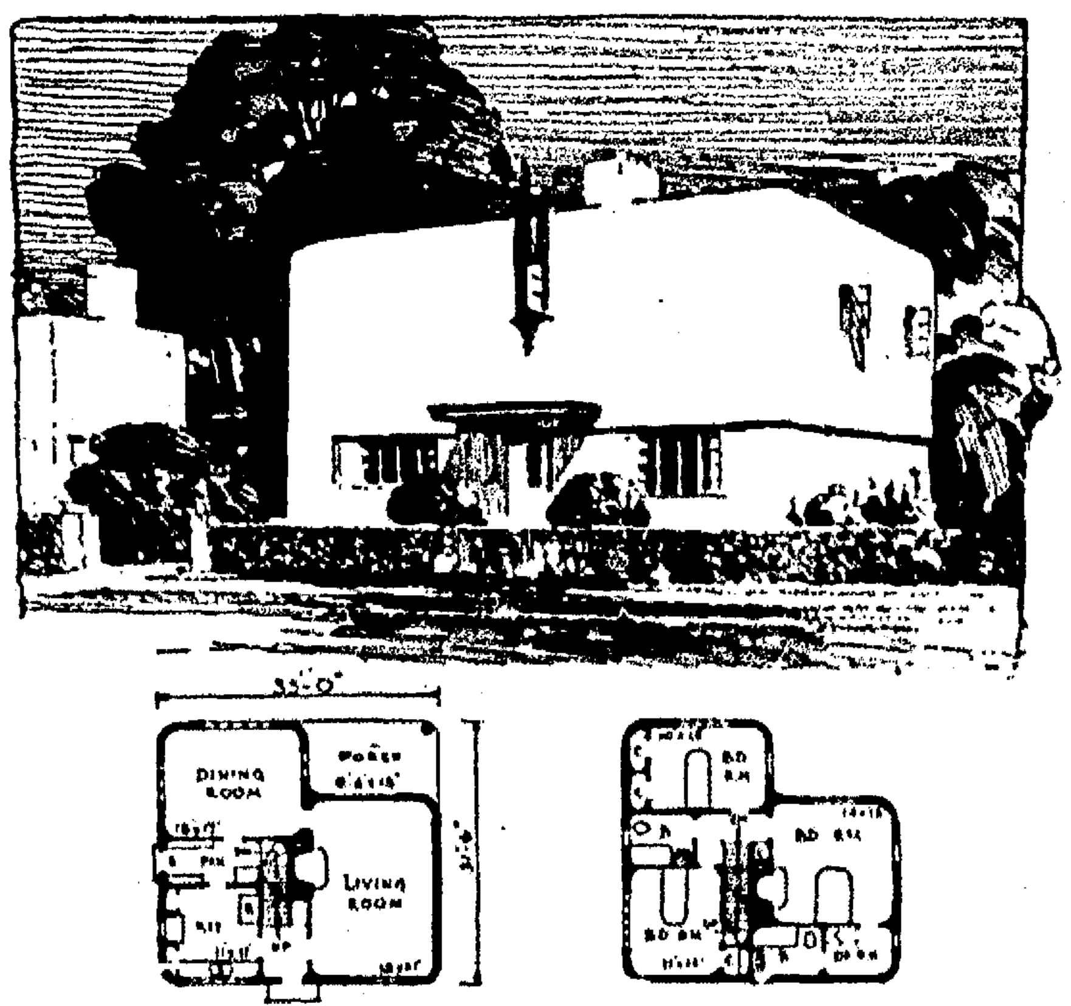
MARSEILLES, Aug. 16—The Ladies' Aid society of the M. E. church met Thursday afternoon at the church.

The meeting was in charge of the president, Mrs. Ruby Emptage. Mrs. Clara Simpson offered prayer.

The following new officers were elected for the coming year: president, Mrs. Mae Chandler; vice president, Lucretia Emptage; secretary, Mrs. Olive Emptage; treasurer, Miss Myrtle Emptage.

The man who swallows his pride should be sure that his digestion is all right.

NO CORNERS IN COMPACT HOUSE



This is a house without corners, so designed that mother will not have to tell daughter to run the vacuum cleaner as close to the corners as possible. In design it is one of the so-called modern types, but really is an adaptation of an old style to present-day needs.

The plan is very compact and economical to build. Either concrete or brick may be used. If concrete is the material chosen it should be honed to a smooth finish. If brick is used it should be painted white. The brick posts at the front gate also should be white to harmonize with the general color scheme.

BUILDING MONEY PLENTIFUL IN OHIO

Loan Association Secretary Reports Funds Plentiful in State.

President Hoover's assertion made in connection with the calling of a White House conference on home building and home ownership, that a shortage of capital available for home building purposes has been so acute that this branch of construction has fallen off correspondingly, does not fit the situation in Ohio, according to James A. Devine, executive secretary of the Ohio Building Association league.

"This might be true elsewhere but it certainly is not the condition in Ohio," declared Mr. Devine. He pointed out that Ohio building, loan and savings companies have one-eighth of the eight billion dollars on deposit in these institutions throughout the United States. "This means that Ohio's home financing institutions have in excess of $1,300,000,000 of funds available for home financing purposes. The ordinary turn-over, according to Mr. Devine, is in the neighborhood of $400,000,000 a year.

Less than eight per cent of the total amount of money loaned by Ohio building and loan associations went into new construction in the past twelve months, the balance being used for re-financing purposes. There has always been plenty of money available for new construction, loan officers contend.

Daily Proverb—"He that complies against his will is of his own opinion still."

A New York casualty company announces that twenty-five per cent. of all accidents are caused by automobiles. What! Is that all?

Celebrating the 104th anniversary of his birth, a resident of Pasadena, California, is quoted as having said: "Above all, don't worry." That's mighty good advice, even though he may not have offered it.

Three gangsters taken for a ride near St. Paul, Minnesota, and another near Chicago. That simplifies the crime situation to some extent.

And now Illinois follows Ohio and Indiana in reporting corn "popping" on the stock as the result of the heat. It's a wonder that you never strike that kind when you buy corn to pop!

Canada proposes to cut immigration as an aid to her jobless. Why not adopt a like plan down here? What sense can there be in permitting the army of unemployed to be augmented?

Twelve thousand admissions were sold at half a dollar each, the opening week of the observation platform on the seventy-first floor of the tower of the Chrysler building in New York City. Six thousand dollars a week would make a fairly good rental for a ground-floor office or store-room.

According to the Moscow Isvestia, the new mobilization law puts soviet Russia upon a complete military basis. It's just possible that one of these days Senators Borah and Wheeler will have to revise their estimates of the bolsheviki as gentle doves.

The state of New Jersey is seizing automobiles believed, because of unfitness, to be menaces to traffic and, on condemnation, burning them. Why wouldn't it be well were every state to have a law under which the authorities might take such action for the safety of motorists and pedestrians alike?

Word comes from Washington that, regardless of the statement of National Chairman Fess, there will be no Hoover backing for Senator Norris for the reason that the senator has "never supported a Republican president." That should appeal to the country as an eminently good reason, but it didn't seem to have much effect out in Nebraska, more's the pity.

A Real Bedroom Car.

For some years the English railroads have run lounge cars on their higher-class trains which possess many features for the pleasure and comfort of the traveler which are not duplicated in similar cars on American railroads. The comfortable chairs are not fixed, but may be moved about to suit the desire of the occupant, and there are perhaps no more than half the number with which the average American lounge car is equipped, which not only gives the traveler much more room, but also gives the car an appearance of unusual spaciousness. Tea tables bearing shaded lamps give the cars a cozy look and the windows, which are as wide as those in the most up-to-date American diner, extend from about a foot above the floor to the bottom of the curve of the roof, giving the traveler a practically unobstructed view of the scenery along both sides of the right-of-way.

The English roads have now introduced a sleeper, which is in all ways as up to the minute as their lounge car. They call it a bedroom car, and that is precisely what it is. Each bedroom is fitted with thick rubber floors and both white and colored lights, which may be dimmed or brightened at will. Each bedroom—or compartment, as we would call it—contains a full size walnut bed with springs and mattress, large beveled mirrors, a folding table, and is fitted with a clothes closet containing hooks and hangers, heavy shutters to insure complete darkness, if that is desired, and there is a padded niche for the traveler's watch at the bedside, where also are the switches for regulating the lights and the flow of either cleansed hot or cold air. Each room, of course, is equipped for hot and cold water and the other conveniences usually found in an up-to-date American drawing-room or compartment car.

The English are inclined to cling to old ways and old things along many lines, but there is nothing slow about them when it comes either to their railroad speed, made possible by practically perfect roadbeds and the elimination of grade crossings, or their passenger equipment, locomotive and Pullman alike. Americans introduced Pullman service in Britain, but since the British have taken the service over, they have made innovations and improvements which make traveling on their roads a delight.

Lipton and His Challenger.

The Shamrock V and her convoy, the Erin, Sir Thomas Lipton's latest steam yacht, are at New London, Connecticut, having arrived at the mouth of the Thames Wednesday, a day ahead of schedule as the result of the favorable weather they enjoyed, and three days ahead of Sir Thomas himself, who came over on the Leviathan.

The Shamrock V, as the name implies, is the fifth yacht entered by Sir Thomas as a challenger for the America's cup, and on it he pins his hope to regain it in the America cup races off Newport, Rhode Island, in September. Under the rules established, it was necessary for the challenger to come to America on its own bottom. That it has accomplished the voyage safety, will be gratifying to all lovers of yachting and to the many friends and admirers of Sir Thomas, the fine old Irish sportsman.

Sir Thomas, if he wins this year's race, will realize a lifelong ambition. For seventy-nine years, ever since he was a one-year-old baby, America has held the famous "Hundred Guineas" cup. Thirteen times it has been contested and thirteen times it has been defended successfully. It is one of the sturdiest traditions in sport which has grown up about it, and the hardy Irish tea merchant is a component part of its strength.

In 1850 England staged the first world fair and invited this country to send a schooner to compete against some of the English yachts. Commodore John C. Stevens, of the New York Yacht club, formed a syndicate to build a boat to represent this country. That boat, the America, celebrated, figurative speaking, its arrival in English waters by beating one of the fastest of the English cutters. Promptly it became unpopular; no other English craft were willing to compete with it. Finally officers of the Royal Yacht squadron announced a race around the Isle of Wight and invited the America to enter. Fourteen British cutters and schooners, many of them superior in size, also were entered.

Commodore Stevens led the fleet home over the fifty-three mile course and was awarded the "Hundred Guineas" cup, which he presented six years later to the New York Yacht club for international competition, open to any organized yacht club of any foreign country.

Some conception of the jealous guardianship exercised by American yachtsmen may be had from the thousands of dollars spent in building boats to compete in the elimination trials. One is selected to sail against Sir Thomas' entry.

The public fancy would be pleased if old Sir Thomas should be successful in what may be his last challenge. Certainly, the "Hundred Guineas" cup would be none the less attractive if it were to be claimed by him after his protracted efforts. It seems more than likely too, that American sportsmen would be pleased to have him win it in competition. At any rate, inlanders and their seashore brethren share admiration for his fine spirit and wish him luck.

A professor of physics in the University of Brussels plans to soar to a height of 52,000 feet in a free balloon, next month, for scientific research purposes. The thing may look easy in theory, but the present altitude record is 43,000 feet, held by Captain Gray, of England.

Cape Cod reports its cranberry crop ruined by the heat, but Wisconsin estimates its crop at 6,000 barrels in excess of that of last year. Another threat at our Thanksgiving and Christmas dinners thwarted!

The New German Lenses.

The new contact lens invented in Germany to replace the glasses ordinarily used by those suffering from defective vision was given its first clinical demonstration in this country this week before the New York City Optometric society and pronounced a success.

The new lense, instead of being fitted into spectacles or nose glasses, fits exactly over the cornea of the eye and is held in place by capillary suction. It is about the size of a cent and ground as are ordinary lenses, save that in all cases the inside of the lens is concave to fit the eyeball, and the outside of it, at least all of it not directly over the pupil of the eye, convex.

The subject of the demonstration was a young woman stenographer who suffers from near-sightedness, who said her vision was greatly improved by the lenses and that she suffered no discomfort as a result of their use.

The lenses, it was explained, when first used, are to be worn for about an hour. As the wearer becomes more and more accustomed to them, the time of wearing is to be lengthened until they may be used for all purposes of vision during the day and removed at bedtime.

While many people suffering from defective vision will naturally hesitate about putting lenses into contact with their eyeballs, there is another thing about them which will retard general adoption of them. That is the price. So accurately and delicately must they be made that they may perfectly fit the eyeball and at the same time correct the vision, that they can not be sold for less than $50 a pair, which to many people will be prohibitive. And even were these two objections met, there is ever and always the danger that they may be broken while in position on the eyeball and work injury to the eye. To many this danger, it may be taken, will prove the chief objection to the lenses.

Miss Laura Ingalls, the twenty-five-year-old New York flier, has the proud distinction of having made 714 consecutive barrel rolls, 297 more than the previous world record made by Dale Jackson. Who longer can question American supremacy in the field of aviation?

Dr. Benjamin F. Battin, vice president of the National Surety company, of New York, places the yearly cost of crime in the United States at $7,500,000,000. We very gravely fear that we were deceived when made to believe that under prohibition, there would be little crime and what we had of little consequence.

Editorial Opinion.

A CAUSE CELEBRE.

The spectacle of a group of stockholders in Great Britain suing the government of Canada before the supreme court of the United States is said to be about to be staged in Washington. The suit will be to compel the dominion government to restore a value to their holdings of an inferior class of Grand Trunk railway stock, which the arbitrators who appraised the Grand Trunk when the government took it over declared to be worthless. An effort will be made, according to a dispatch from Washington, to have the supreme court attach the American lines of the old Grand Trunk system on the ground that the holders of this stock were deprived of property without due process of law. James M. Beck is reported to have been retained by the stockholders.

The controversy over this stock dates back to 1919, when the Canadian government, acting by authority of parliamentary legislation, took over the Grand Trunk system, which apparently had become hopelessly insolvent. The government had loaned the Grand Trunk millions of dollars and controlled much of its stock. One of the three arbitrators appointed to place a valuation on the property was the late William Howard Taft, who had been president of the United States and was later to be chief justice. The other two were distinguished Canadians. The latter held the stock now in dispute to be worthless; but Mr. Taft was of the opinion that those who owned it were entitled to "compassionate" consideration. The Canadian government took a practical and business-like view of the matter, which excluded both compassion and charity.

Although the Canadian government's position has been upheld by the courts in Canada and Great Britain and justified by eminent counsel in both countries, a determined propaganda on behalf of the disgruntled stockholders has been kept up ever since. There is a suspicion that much of this stock is now in the hands of speculators, who bought it for little or nothing; but be that as it may, those who hold it have for years used their "grievance" as an excuse for defaming Canada in Great Britain and seeking to embarrass it in the matter of capital and immigration. They appear to have a poor case; but even a poor case of such international interest, argued before the supreme court by so competent a constitutional authority as James M. Beck, would attract widespread attention.—Detroit Free Press.

THE ST. LAWRENCE ROUTE.

Last week the Great Lakes Harbor association voted to request the Hoover administrttion to confer at once with the Canadian government regarding the deep-channel waterway from the Great lakes to the Atlantic by way of the St. Lawrence. The association's decision is explicit in the belief that the feasibility of the project can not be questioned any longer.

President Hoover made excellent political capital out of the St. Lawrence seaway project as a presidential nominee, and after his election undertook conversations with Ottawa regarding it. But such projects move slowly, the more so when two nations are involved. In recent months, Canada has shown a growing disinclination to share a joint plan, fearing that the United States will dominate the project, while Canada continues to pay her share of the bill.

If the building of a deep channel through this route is as feasible as the Great Lakes association believes, then there is no excuse for delay in pressing for an international convention to make its construction possible. If it is not feasible, then the administration should demonstrate just why it is not, for the whole project represents a campaign pledge that should be accounted for to the electorate.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

RAIN AS A SEDATIVE.

There's a soothing melody in the patter of the rain on the roof when showers come to break the heat and drougth, and a grateful sound in the put, put, put, as the falling drops strike the leaves on the tree alongside the window. Water that drips from the leaves adds a welcome note to the chorus. Under the stress of drougth long continued, the ground is parched and the world seems hard and tense. Humanity has been under a strain. With the coming of rain the world appears more amiable and kindly, there is a normal human relaxation as the clouds gather, the thunders speak and the rain falls.

What a glorious thing is a summer rain on a dry earth! How wonderful is rain when we have waited long for its coming! How quickly it seems to put things back more nearly in balance! The bounty of rain is appreciated most when it has been withheld for a time. We read of rain in Kansas City, the clouds moving eastward. The next day we read of rain in St. Louis, the clouds still moving eastward. Then it reaches us, not as much as we would desire, but enough to bring fresh, cool air, freedom from heat, enough rain to give the dry earth a drink and rouse human courage for the task of the day.

The clouds still know how to bring us rain. How beautiful!—Ohio State Journal.

Unnatural Lives.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Every year millions of dollars are wasted through absences from business due to illness.

This means much in the commercial world, but what does it mean in terms of wasted health to the individuals who suffer from illness?

The majority of city dwellers today are living unnatural lives so far as fresh air and sunlight are concerned. Shut in for long hours in the day, business and professional people, and many housewives, too, are cut off from the life-giving rays of the sun.

Our modern school system requires the child to spend the best hours of the day in the classroom. He is there during the brightest hours of sunshine and deprived of its benefits. He needs the ultra-violet rays of the sun to stimulate the chemical activities of the body. He needs them to aid in his growth.

Educators have awakened to these truths. They know now that in the construction of school buildings something must be provided for besides heating, lighting and ventilation. It is realized now that it is equally important for the pupils to be provided with sunlight.

For some years past experiments have been conducted to test the comparative merits of the various types of window glass. Efforts have been made to find one that permits the ultra-violet rays to penetrate. Ordinary window glass does not have this property because of certain substances in its composition. Already many schools, hospitals and public buildings have been equipped with such glass.

An interesting test of the effects from this window glass was made at the Adams school, in Birmingham, Michigan. From February 1 to June 1 one group of children occupied a room with a southern exposure that was equipped with an ultra-violet transmitting glass. Another group was kept in a room which had windows of ordinary glass.

Consideration was given to all the factors that might affect the test. Measurements of growth in height and weight and attendance and absences on account of illness demonstrated that the group from the ultra-violet room scored higher than the children from the other group in every way.

This is only one of many other experiments of like nature in recent years. For the underweight and anemic child, in the prevention of rickets and other degenerative diseases of childhood it is very necessary that every means be taken to provide health measures of every sort. Every child during every day of the year needs fresh air and direct sunlight or sky-shine to promote health.

These summer days, with long hours of sunshine, is the time for the kiddies to make up for the time lost in winter. Now they should be out in the parks, or the country and seashore. It is good news that more playgrounds in the big cities are being furnished. Let the children be out in the open and store up health for the coming closed-in season.—Copyright, 1930, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Father Coughlin, radio preacher of Detroit, is responsible for the building of a magnificent monument of the crucifixion on the 400-foot highway that runs west from Detroit. He means it to stand as a shrine of tolerance. It is costing a quarter of a million dollars. Father Coughlin, with only thirty-two families in his parish, broadcasts over a national network to millions. It is said his invisible radio parish contains 7,000,000 people. He gets 14,000 letters a week. From the top of the towering shrine a 1,000,000-watt beacon will shine out into the night.

We must appreciate our responsibility as citizens of society to accomplish that."

Courtesy may sometimes be the whole distance between failure and success. An Australian millionaire walked into a charitable institution and asked to see the head of the institution. A snappy secretary told him he would have to state his business or he couldn't go in. The visitor took a check for $50,000 out of his pocket, made out to the institution, tore it up, and gave the fragments to the snappy secretary.

Nothing wrong about the secretary's asking the visitor his business. But a secretary with sense plus courtesy could have done it in such a way as to leave a pleasant impression.

Discourtesy is much worse than a bad habit. It is a singularly acute kind of dumbness.

The Marion Shovel and Dredge company was organized with John D. Owens, president, and A. E. Cheney, secretary and general manager.

Lancaster defeated Marion, four to one, Cheney pitched for the visitors and Lewis and Rice for the home team.

The Little Scioto improvement was sold to the Foohey Dredge company, of Fort Wayne, Indiana, at $65,500.

Sees King Alfonso.

BY O. O. M'INTYRE.

At Sea, Aug. 16—This is the only ship in which I remember riding that did not also carry Gilbert Miller. And the "Europa" should abandon that ancient subterfuge of making each passenger believe he bought the very last cabin. There was never a ship, hotel or theater without room for one more.

There was ado this morning in taking on passengers at Southampton. Whenever there is suppressed excitement among stewards in companionways I am one of those voyageurs who aches for a spot near the rail right now. So I dressed and got there, leaving my wife, the most courageous person I know, behind.

All ship officers were at attention awaiting an English lighter. On the bridge of the lighter was an easily recognizable figure, despite Savile Row tweeds and a Sherlock Holmes deer-stalker cap. The Hapsburg lip was unmistakable. It was King Alphonso, of Spain.

He had run down from London to inspect the German liner. I had glimpses of him at Longchamp race course the other week, but standing goggle-eyed in a hall entrance I saw him at close range. Indeed so close that in shaking hands with the crew he leaned over to give Billy a passing pat.

The king is larger and more rugged than photographs reveal. He was in sporting costume and wore his wrist watch with the dial turned in. His hair is thatched with gray and his jutting smile is particularly agreeable. I noticed a pencil with a clip in an upper coat pocket.

Commodore Johnson took him the rounds of the "Europa" while almost the entire passenger list waited at the exit for his departure. No matter our aversion to a monarchy it symbolizes an idea that thrills. A jaded cigaret-puffing flapper as the king passed exclaimed: "There's my big kick on this trip!"

Alphonso talked in German to the crew, in Spanish to an aide and in going down the plank called in unaccented English to a British friend: "Hurry along, we are holding up the sailing." He returned to the lighter bridge and waved until out of sight. I liked him tremendously.

* * *

If the king is distressed by the stormy drift in his kingdom he did not show it. Today the ship daily carried a dispatch from Madrid of the continued slump in the money exchange. And it is axiomatic that when money falls the throne wobbles.

The old free lunch idea is carried out in the bar. With each glass of beer the waiter brings a sealed package of pretzels, almonds, potato chips and cheese and pickles. All beer is drawn from the keg with an Al Bedell collar.

* * *

With the $100, returned by the ship, I am indulging a tonsorial toot each morning. I climb into one of the chairs and tell the barber to shoot the works and you'd be surprised the things he thinks up. My face has been scraped a sirloin red, my nails are filed to the quick and my head has the sensitiveness of an over-ripe carbunkle. Yet I have spent only eight dollars and have three days to go.

There was a glorified Natchez and Robert E. Lee effect this afternoon. On the port side we were neck to neck—perhaps it is bow to bow—with the Homeric. The good ship, Europa, showed her heels—I nearly used the nautical term—in no time and within thirty minutes miles were between us.

When this reaches print I will have yodeled my customary yoo-hoo to Miss Liberty and hugged Harry Acton and Jimmie Lanehart of the ship news crew. The next date line will be New York. And I might add the most interesting to me of all cities visited.

And additional home-coming thrill is provided in a new home furnished at 290 Park avenue during our absence where will arrive, too, Rainbow, a Sealyham puppy, a new companion for Billy. New Sources of Energy.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

If, as scientists now prophesy, the coal supply of the world will be completely exhausted in a few centuries, it behooves the governments of the world to initiate exhaustive scientific investigations looking toward the discovery and exploitation of new sources of power. When Sir William Ramsay, in 1910, predicted that Great Britain's supply of coal would be exhausted in 175 years, his words detonated loudly in the ears of British statesmen.

Since that time various English bodies and commissions have studied many other possible sources of power, which could be made available for commercial purposes. Among the principal possibilities considered are: The rise and fall of the tides, energy sources in wind velocity and the fall of water, the heat contained in the earth's interior, the chemical energy derived from solar rays in vegetation, the hidden energies stored up in matter, and even the orbital motion and rotary spin of the earth.

As yet, scientists are far from being agreed as to the constitution of the interior of the earth or of any star.

But all are agreed that these celestial bodies are giant power plants, mighty atomic dynamos for the generation of radiation. And radiation is a form of cosmic energy, mighty in its effect and universal in its diffusion. It is scarcely to be doubted, although there are numerous fanciful theorists who deny it, that the temperature of the earth steadily increases as we penetrate from the surface toward the interior. In the "Villege Deep" mine in Johannesburg, South Africa, the circulating air at a depth of 7,000 feet becomes unbearably hot.

The question naturally arises: How deep shall we be able to sink mine shafts, and enable man, by protective scientific apparel, to mine coal or otherwise labor there? Great accomplishments have already been recorded in that direction, during the past century. Elaborate and efficient machinery, safety devices of many sorts, now enable man to work in the earth's interior at depths hitherto believed to be impossible. Science will doubtless overcome these difficulties in the future as they arise.

Another century, perhaps, will show mine shafts sunk to from five to ten times the present greatest depths. The internal heat will be needed to supply the energy once furnished by coal. Science will realize the vision of Sir Charles Parsons, a shaft twelve miles deep, costing $100,000,000, and releasing enough power through heat to run the industries of the British empire!—Copyright, 1930, International Feature Service, Inc.

$1,000,000 RUM CARGO SEIZED

Toledo-Detroit Blockade in Force After Raid on British Ship.

By International News Service

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 16—The $1,000,000 liquor ship, the 200-foot British steamer, "Vedas," today was tied to the police docks at Windsor, across the Detroit river from here, while Canadian officials sought to determine the exact status of the Great Lakes liner.

Meanwhile United States coastguard cutters, more than 35 in number, spread a blockade from Detroit to Toledo to thwart any attempt to smuggle liquor into this country.

The cargo of the Vedas consisted of between 10,000 and 15,000 cases of liquor and beer, worth approximately $1,000,000 in United States bootleg prices.

Canadian authorities boarded the ship off West Sister island in Lake Erie late yesterday when the boat allegedly was in the process of unloading. The cargo, authorities charged, was being transferred to small powerful speed boats. Coastguardsmen said that some of the cargo may have been "run" into this country

The crew of 26 surrendered without resistance and manned the steamer to Windsor. Officers of the boat claim clearance papers from a New Foundland port.

United States coastguardsmen said that if the ship was given clearance, it would lead to the establishment of a "rum row" in Lake Erie. They described it as the boldest attempt to smuggle liquor into the country since the advent of prohibition.

TRACE LEADS IN THEFTS HERE

Sheriff Hopes To Break Up Farm Thievery Ring Said Operating in County.

While two suspects now are being held in the county jail, Sheriff John J. Francis and his deputies are tracing leads which they expect to result in further arrests in their attempt to break up a gang of cattle and grain thieves which has been operating in the county in recent months, the sheriff said today.

Efforts to break up the gang were started this week when two thieves were surprised on the farm of Norris Carey, of near Green Camp, as they were walking toward their automobile with sacks of wheat taken from the Carey barn in a woods near the farmer's home. Surprised by Carey, the pair fired at the farmer who protected himself behind a tree. Later Carey emptied a shotgun at the men who fled through a cornfield, abandoning their car.

Owners of the car and others associated with them are now being sought by the sheriff.

The gang which Francis seeks to break up is alleged to have transported its stolen grain and cattle outside the state, making their offense a federal one.

If successful in breaking up the ring of thieves, Francis believes a great deal of the stealing from Marion county farms will be stopped, for he lays much of the currents bits of thievery in the rural sections to the gang.

Meanwhile, a posse of farmers in the Green Camp vicinity has been organized by Arthur Dennison, Green Camp garageman, who is reported to have been deputized by Sheriff Francis.

The men are assisting the sheriff in his efforts to apprehend men in that vicinity who are believed to be implicated in the Carey stealing.

DETAILS OF PEN FIRE INQUIRY KEPT SECRET

about a half dozen hardened criminals —who hoped to escape in the confusion caused by the fire. These men, according to reports filtering from the penitentiary, used a fuse to start the blaze on the I and K cell block roof. They had timed the fire to start at 4 p. m., it was said, but the fuse was too long, and when the flames broke out later, several hundred convicts, who had been in the prison yard at 4 p. m., were locked in their cells. The group planning escape, were reported to have hoped that the Columbus fire department would enter the prison yard, and that from the firemen the convict could obtain ladders with which to scale the walls.

These reports, to an extent, confirmed facts developed during the weeks immediately following the blaze. The fire was started on the roof of the I-K block, which was under repairs. Certain convicts had access to the roof. The fire originated among some oil soaked wood forms, used in placing concrete. These forms readily burned, and threw off the black smoke which swept from the roof of the unoccupied I-K block into the G-H cell tiers. The flames also spread to G-H block, where 320 convicts were housed. Some investigators held that convicts had set the fire atop the unoccupied blocks, never thinking it would spread to the G-H section and take a terriffic toll.

Expected for Months

It was generally known that the fire, and rioting, had been expected by prison officials for months.

Prison officials, working through their inside grapevine system of spies, had learned that a group of unidentified convicts planned the fire and had collected sufficient weapons with which to fight their way over the walls.

It was learned today that the investigators suspected at least six convicts, one of whom is reported to have been suffocated in a locked cell. The others, it is said, are now confined in other state institutions.

Investigators continued to insist that they had located no definite evidence in the case, and Warden Preston E. Thomas told newspaper men that he had nothing to-say about the investigation and that he was concerned over the fact that newspapers had published anything about the removal of the two convicts to the city jail under cover of night. While he refused to amplify this statement, it was the general belief that the warden feared publicity would hamper the investigators in their work.

State Fire Marshal Ray R. Gill was visiting today with relatives in Wooster. Attempts to reach him by telephone were fruitless, and his chief fire investigator, Deputy Marshal Joseph Clear, refused to discuss the case.

Marion Man Is Named To London Diplomatic Post

Walter T. Prendergast, Son of Mr. and Mrs. J. F Prendergast, of East Church Street, Visits Here Before Sailing for Europe.

Walter T. Prendergast of Washington, arrived today for a brief visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James F. Prendergast of 498 East Church street, before going to London where he recently was transferred to the United States embassy. He will leave Sunday for Washington and sail for his post Wednesday on the Leviathan.

For the past two years Mr. Prendergast has been administrative officer for the division of the protocol in the state department. He was secretary of the delegation headed by Secretary of State Stimson which participated in the Naval Conference. He spent several weeks in London in preparation for the arrival of the delegation. His offices in St. James Palace were one of the business points for all interested in the proceedings during the conference and for the visitors from this country in London at that period.

Mr. Prendergast entered the foreign service immediately after graduating from Harvard in 1922. Aside from the two years passed in Washington he was assigned to the embassies in Brussels and Havana.

The division of the protocol, the youngest subdivision, has become a recognized part of America's diplomatic service. First known as the office of ceremonies and later the division of protocol, the division of the international conference and protocol has grown from a one-man bureau to one of the most important divisions of the state department, according to the Washington Star. Its duties now include the task of handling invitations sent the American government for international parleys. Since Jan. 1 more than 100 such invitations have been received. Of these 61 have been officially accepted and representatives designated for the United States.

In many cases diligent search is made for a private citizen of sufficient wealth and interest in the subject to pay his or her own way to the conference. Representation at such conferences has almost become a political matter, however, as in many cases aspirants seek the influence of their senators and representatives to obtain the appointment.

Among unusual subjects involved in the recent invitations were conferences on protection of brands of cheese, photogrammetry, rheumatism, olive oil and the leisure of workers.

It's Here and Hay-Fever Victims Look For Relief

KA-A-HA-A-HA-CHOO! The season's on. And blessed are they who for the next several months don't have to go about with bleary eyes, several dozen handkerchiefs stuck around in all available odd pockets, or have to make a trip north to get away from the deadly hay-fever epidemic.

Death by the wrack or wheel will be gentle ways to oblivion compared with the dire punishments milling in the minds of hay fever victims for those who so much as mention goldenrod, aside from bringing a sheaf of it into the house and giving it a place of honor on the telephone stand.

The hay-fever season officially opened in Ohio yesterday, but several Marion persons, including one minister, left early this week for extreme northern Michigan and Canada, to be as far away as possible from the pollens of weed plants, the essential causes of hay fever from Aug. 15 until frost sets in. Those who suffered attacks of the fever earlier in the summer had been susceptible to the tree and grass pollens.

But there are those who will not know the joys of the clear, clean cool air of the northern woods, who will have to stay at home and groan everytime the breeze blows a grain of dust or the neighbor mows the lawn, and in less dignified words, "take his medicine."

And the most excruciating thing about hay fever is that the victim knows he looks like something the cat had dragged in, with red-rimmed eyes, a pre-prohibition nose, and an out-cast expression.

ACCORDING to the police Chinese "tong" men in New York are learning racketeer methods from the west. Gentlemen of one tong sometimes kill gentlemen to another tong and hitherto each tong has done its own killing.

It isn't so among modern gangsters and racketeers.

They hire somebody, usually a youthful cocaine victim, to do the killing, and put the doomed man "on the spot." The killer shoots, not knowing the name of his victim or why he is killed.

Following this excellent idea, New York's On Leon Tong hired two young white men to murder seven enemies of a rival tong. The white youths told the police. Three Chinese and one Filipino arrested. six guns, several hundred rounds of ammunition seized.

ROBERT KRONFIELD, Australian glider flier, betters his own world record, gliding 94 miles in a storm. Others feared to glide in such weather, but Kronfield went up, "hooked on to a little cloud," as he put it, and, carried by the wind that carried the cloud, he went sweeping 94 miles over the mountains.

No wonder gliding attracts romantic youth! Who would have dreamed a few years ago, looking at the clouds, that a man would go up on a frail board, "hook on" to one of the clouds and sail with it?

HOOVER AND BANKERS WILL DISCUSS DROUTH

Conference Next National Move To Give Parched Areas Relief.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16 — A Hoover conference with bankers from the drouth ridden states stood out today as the next national move in the drouth relief campaign. Beneficial rains meanwhile alleviated conditions in several of the sun-parched areas.

As soon as the state relief committees—agreed upon at the White House conference of governors—have been set up, President Hoover expects to call in their banking members for a discussion of the financial means to be employed in the campaign to prevent human suffering and disease, and to tide farmers and livestock over the winter season.

Meanwhile, federal agencies virtually are marking time, until the state, county and local committees are functioning, to apply directly the local relief available.

The program adopted received the unqualified approval yesterday of the heads of three important farm organizations, the National Grange, Farmers' Union and American Farm Bureau Federation. They considered the plan the best available and pledged their wholehearted cooperation.

Rains were looked to meanwhile to rejuvenate pasture land and to aid in raising the morale of farmers who have been driven near to destitution by the dry weather and parching sun. Prevalence of cooler weather, even without rain, was seen as a considerable aid in delaying deterioration of grazing lands and forage.

Forecasts were for rains today and Sunday in the South Atlantic states, the Ohio Valley, Tennessee, the Southern Appalachian region and the western lower lake region.

Just Things

Signs of the Times

SIGNS of the times are to be found in the atmosphere of bustle around Harding high school, mothers in stores discussing the merits of school garments, big placards announcing the sale of new and used school books and teachers refurbishing their wardrobes with smart and practical frocks for the fall. It's hard to believe that the time is so near and yet if you want something that will make you turn off the electric fan just think how cold it is going to get before we start in on another vacation. To those of us who must fare forth in time to bid Old Sol a hearty good morning it is a case of misery loving company for believe it or not Ripleys, it's a big help to see others taking the air enroute to their daily dozen along with oneself.

Postcards

THIS season doesn't seem to do so well when it comes to the vacation postcard pastime. At least very few have found their way to this desk. Perhaps the strain was too great on the ties of friendship for it goes without telling that it took a pretty close thread to warrant a cordial reception of the sender of a post card picturing cool, gently lapping waves and sylvan dells when the thermometer in the office totaled 100. And just to bink there was a time when postcard vendors reaped a harvest off the gullible ones wont to part with our sheckels in lump sums of 25 and 50 cents. There are a few of us left who still get a thrill out of the souvenir postcard but deliver us from the ones that read "having a fine time wish you were here."

A Poem

THIS little poem from the pen of Joseph Easton McDougall may or may not express the feelings of a lot of folks. This line precedes the poem; (My friends jeered when I walked to the piano. Adv.)

She played. The room was filled with chords
  Of melodies unheard before.
She played a ballad and a waltz
  And then she smiled and played some more.
She played. Her slender fingers wove
  Of phantom notes a strange design.
She played, though none had asked her to;
  'Twas just a quarter after nine.
She played. We laid our hands aside,
  Our bridge forgotten with the score.
She played a song she said she loved;
  She played it five or six times more.
She played "I Hear You Calling Me,"
  She sighed and played it once again.
"The Maiden's Prayer" and "Sonny Boy."
  It was a quarter after ten.
She played till everyone was gone.
  It was a quarter after two.
'Tis terrible to think what harm
  Six lessons through the mail will do.

If you have a dominating personality, somebody is always calling on you to dominate. "You never git no rest."

Dagger : —BY— Mary Dahlberg

ROMANCE AND ADVENTURES OF A DARING TEXAS GIRL

Copyright 1930, Duffield & Company

CHAPTER 22

A Voice Out of the Past

DAGGER put one hand to her throat, and swallowed hard. That was the past. Foolish to yield to it. And yet—she started again to read the note from the Duc de Pontoise, and one of the phrases suddenly rang out with a familiar note. "The responsibility of the well born."

She had heard that before. And her eyes strayed down the sheet to the signature: Raoul de Senac, Duc de Pontoise. Surely, that name meant something to her. Had Jack mentioned it? No, she was sure he hadn't. And then as suddenly as before, a warmth of memory suffused her; there was a creak of leather in her ears, and far-off the lowing of cattle. Texas! Phrases snapped vividly in her mind—"....as different as four men could be. Raoul de Senac—he was the first ....he has Charlemagne's blood in his veins....a great aristocrat—who believes in the responsibility of the well-born."

Dagger gasped. But of course! It had been Howard, Howard telling her of his pilgrimage in search of light. De Senac was Howard's friend, had been Howard's friend before he became Jack's. She laughed to herself on a faint note of hysteria. How strange. Here, tonight, she had established contact with the friend of the two men who had loved her, whom she had loved.

For an instant she had a sensation of nearness both to Blaine and Jack. It was as if they were crowding in upon her, their spirits blanketing hers. But as quickly as the sensation had developed it was gone, and she heard dimly her maid speaking from the bedroom door:

"Pardon, Madame, your bath is ready."

Half an hour later, Dagger sat at her dressing-table, soothed and relaxed beyond her expections, Marie's skillful hands wielding the brush upon her hair, a pleasant chatter of gossip driving unpleasant thaughts from her mind.

The room-telephone tingled abruptly.

Madame's car is at the door."

"We must hurry," said Dagger. "Here I have been dreaming when my friends wait dinner for me. My dress—quick, Marie."

A few minutes later the car came to a stop in front of high gates, and presently rolled on into a short driveway, which circled between a patch of lawn and a square-built stone house. A butler, who wore the ribbon of the Croix de Guerre on his lapel, ran down the steps to open the car door, and ushered her into a hall where a fire burned on an open hearth.

In a doorway on her right Dick Welling appeared with a tall, ash-blonde woman, whose willowy figure and perfect features seemed to Dagger to constitute an ideal combination of aristocratic beauty; while the slow, drawling voice and friendly smile made an impression of humor and feeling. Much to her surprise, Dagger realized that she was going to like Emily.

"So this is Dagger!" Emily exclaimed. "From all Dick's tales I expected a cowgirl in boots and breeches—one's ideas are colored by the films, perhaps. And you are a woman of the world! Dick, you never said your Dagger was so lovely."

"You mustn't turn my head," laughed Dagger. "And if there's anything you like about me, Dick is responsible. He was the closest to a father I had."

Emily put an arm around her, and kissed her—and Dagger, who loathed women's caresses, as a rule, was touched.

"I owe you very much, my dear," Emily said a trifle husikly. "I don't know what Dick would have done during those unhappy years, but for you and that precious uncle of yours—But let's not talk of it!"

Dagger was surprised at herself a second time. "Those unhappy years!" The years Emily had been Howard's wife! But instinctively Dagger had grasped that the woman intended them to be no reflection upon the husband she had lost. They were years that had been unhappy for all three persons concerned and the fact of unhappiness was not to be blamed upon any one of the three. It was just one of life's accidents—or ironies, depending upon how you viewed the comedy of existence. No more personally unjust than the situation it had indirectly brought Dagger, herself, into.

"You don't owe me anything," Dagger answered gently. "Dick gave us more than we could have given him. I'm glad you're happy now."

And Emily drew her closer.

"Poor child! Your happiness has been fleeting."

Dick coughed apologetically.

"Damned serious, this conversation," he complained. "Don't worry about Dagger, Emily. She's a battler, fights her way through."

An undertone in his voice, a side-glance he gave her notified Dagger that Emily was unaware of her feeling for Howard, and for this she was thankful. However pleasantly surprised she was to discover that the "pale, blond creature" she had hated was actually lovable and attractive, she couldn't resist feeling that Emily was one person she'd never be able to share Howard with in thought or reflection.

Indeed, at the bare recollection that Howard had belonged to Emily, in a technical sense, at least, she experienced a sickening revulsion, which she was at pains to conquer, as unworthy of her and unfair to a woman who had never consciously wronged her—who, indeed, had suffered for years through no fault of her own.

When Dagger entered the salon for breakfast next day the first object to catch her eye was the vase of orchids de Senac had sent. The Frenchman's courtly note had excited her imagination, and sipping at her coffee, she wondered if he had indicated what she was confident an American would have intended: a desire to serve her personally. No harm in finding out. He would be a novel figure in her experience—moreover, would form a link with Howard, and more than ever, after seeing Emily the night before, she hungered for a contact with Howard free from the subtle complications of sex jealousy. So straightway she sat down at her desk, and wrote a pleasant acknowledgement of de Senac's gift, concluding with an invitation to tea the following afternoon.

Marie met Dagger in the salon with an envelope in hand when she returned that evening from a sight-seeing tour.

From Dick? Dagger had forgotten her note to de Senac, written during her period of depression, and she was surprised to see his name at the bottom of the brief message:

> "It will aford me great pleasure to attend you, Madame, tomorrow afternoon, My Compliments.
>
> "De Senac."

Her first reaction was one of amusement—the formal taciturnity of the communication was so at variance with the promptness of the reply to her invitation; but she realized sensibly that she was ignorant of the details of French social intercourse, and on second thoughts was mildly intrigued by the outlook for the morrow.

Dagger's second awakening in Paris was happier than her first. She had begun to feel that she belonged in her new surroundings, and the prospect of de Senac's call assured her against boredom.

A bath, and a rest in the afternoon, and she summoned Marie to help her dress for de Senac's visit, choosing for her frock a slight, black dress, such as a schoolgirl might have worn. It emphasized the youth of her features, which still retained a trace of the rounded contour of adolescence. Her ivory cheeks were innocent of make-up, as was her custom, and she used no lip-stick on her mouth.

She was faintly excited. Moving about the salon, shifting flowers, making certain that cigarettes and cigars were handy, touching up the contents of the tables, telephoning the maitre d'hotel instructions for tea, she wondered frequently what her visitor would be like—a tall dragoon of a man? An exquisite, mincingly refined? A self-contained thinker? Quiet? Talkative? Assertive? Contemptuous of foreigners? Amorous? Timid?

Love's Reawakening

A Wife's Triumph Over Jealousy

—BY ADELE GARRISON

Madge Is Angered

I DID not need even the "split second" so dear to certain writers of adventure stories to be convinced that there was a disapproving note in Helena Brixton's comment upon my announcement that our party was to be in Mary's honor. It might be a subconscious thought, but it had manifested itself, and involuntarily my own voice sharpened as I answered her question.

"Very little older, really. But of course, she has finished school—preparatory—and is—"

"She seemed much older to me," Mrs. Brixton said, and I was sure that she did not realize she had abruptly interrupted a sentence of mine. "But, of course, that does not matter. The older young people will just have to put up with the school children."

"But there aren't any older young people," I said. "Mary is a stranger here and has kept so close to her studies that she has made no friends. The party isn't going to be a large one, and, with the exception of Mary herself and four young men (two of them exceedingly youthful West Point cadets), the guests, except the chaperons, are in your house this morning."

"Oh!" she said again, and the note was distinctly stronger now. "How dear of you to do this for her! And now tell me all about it. When do you want us?"

"About six o'clock," I told her, trying to keep my voice cordial. "And, please, will you tell me the color of all your gowns—yours also, I mean. A friend of Mary's is sending corsage bouquets to every woman in the party."

"What a munificent person!" she laughed, but I jealously fancied that it was a bit forced. "What time must you have this information? They're all sound asleep."

"Ten o'clock" I returned. "Will they be awake then?"

"Oh, yes! They're going to ride in the park this morning, you know. But I want them to sleep until the last possible moment, for they were up last night."

"Of course," I agreed. "I'll telephone you again at ten. Good-bye."

"Just a second," she interposed quickly. "As the party is for your niece, may I not keep Marion here until evening, so that she can come over with the crowd?"

"Mrs. Underwood is right here," I said, indefinably glad to close the colloquy. "I'll call her."

I gestured to Lillian, standing outside the booth, and she took the receiver from me, listened for a second and shot an involuntary glance at me before she answered.

"I won't be hard-hearted," she said in a voice perfectly audible to me, standing outside. "She may stay for lunch and she may come over with the crowd tonight. But I want her to come over to the hotel right after luncheon. I must take her shopping. She'll be back with you in plenty of time to dress for the party. All right Fine! Good-bye."

She came out of the booth and walked to the door with me before she spoke.

"Wait a second," she said as I turned in the direction of the florist I wished to see about the decorations, "Don't walk so fast. Something's disturbing the convolutions of the old reliable bean. What did Helena spill that upset you?"

I forced a little laugh.

"How often have I told you that if you'd lived two centuries ago they'd have burned you at the stake," I queried. "She didn't say anything to which and reasonable being could take exception."

"Well, what did she say which might distrub an unreasonable being?" Lilliam inquired with an impish side glance at me.

"She asked if Mary wasn't older than the rest, and something in her manner—" I hesitated.

"Made you suspect she disapproved of Mary," Lillian finished my sentence, then added one of her own. "and she does, so she does."

I stiffened, and my monosyllable "Why" was a bit raucous.

"Keep the blouse on!" Lillian admonished. "She hasn't a thing against Mary. In fact, she probably admires her tremendously. If it wasn't for this party thing she'd be strong for her."

"I don't understand," I said blankly.

"No, not being the mother of a sub-deb, you can't," Lillian retorted "It's subconscious maternal jealousy, that's all. Helena wants Carolyn to be the belle of the hall, and she knows very well that Mary's going to sweep everything before her."

Jubilee's Pardner

• • •

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

TODAY was Saturday and it was bright and bammy when me and Jubilee had woke up and went and poked our noses out of the window, and when I had let him down by his rope and had put on my short britches and went down and went outdoors with the milk pail, and looked up and saw the sky so blue and all, and thought of the ariplane that used to be up there, it didn't seem like things could be like that, but nobody leaves any marks on the sky, and the squirrel is dead and nothing is left of him, and the burglar is locked up like a wild animal. I don't believe I will ever go in an airplane or be a burglar, and I couldn't be a squirrel if I wanted to.

We all took our cows out, and then we made it up we would go around and see Gimmie, and when we got there Youniss and Feeble and Maggie the girl that got fascinated on her leg, were there. She got fascinated on her leg so it wouldn't show, but her leg has got longer or her dress has got shorter since she was fascinated, so it shows anyhow, but it isn't so much to look at.

The girls were setting out on Gimmie's steps when we got there, and her mother came to the door, and said: "Good morning. Some ice cream has just been delivered and when it is dished out I will call you." So we played leapfrog and we were keeping our eyes on the back door so hard so we would not miss her when she called, that when I was down and the Lost Bag of Tripe had to jump over me and I fell flat on my stummick just as he was going to put his hands on my back he went over me and landed on his face, and if the ground hadn't been soft from the rain and muddy he might have broke his nose.

Then she called us and told us each where to set, and she sot down acrost from me and, I took my spoon and was just going to dig into my ice cream when my sosser jumped and scairt me. I looked around and no one was looking at me so I went after it again, I thought I imagined it, and as soon as I touched the ice cream the sosser jumped up and almost turned over, and I didn't know what was the matter, but I wanted the ice cream and I started for it again, and it gave a jump and turned over in my lap. And then Gimmie's mother just hollered and hollered and hollered till there were tears on her cheek, and she pulled something acrost the table, and she had a soft rubber ball under my sosser under the spread and a thin rubber pipe running acrost to her side and another rubber ball in her lap, and when she would squeeze it my sosser would jump. She is certainly funny. I never did know anyone like her. She gave me some more ice cream.

HAND MAY ASK FOR RELEASE FROM PEN

Believes Cashier May Have Made Mistake in Identification; Battle Over Bond Continues at Bucyrus.

BUCYRUS, Aug. 16—While a legal loophole is being sought here by bondsmen for Wilbur W. Hand, convicted bank robber who is serving a sentence in the Ohio penitentiary whereby they may escape payment of the $25,000 bond as decreed by the Ohio supreme court recently, steps are being taken by Hand to prove his innocence of the crime, which he has maintained from the time of his first arrest.

The latest developments in the bond case occurred late yesterday when Judge J. Walter Wright overruled a motion filed by counsel for the bondsmen, H. N. Oberlander and George Kinsel, asking for a stay of execution on levying on the bondsmen's property for payment of the bond. The motion was filed on the grounds that an application for rehearing of a motion to enter the supreme court is now before that court and because the bondsmen now have on file in the local court an application for remission of the bond.

That Prosecutor J. D. Sears expects to levy on property of the two men in defiance of an order from Seba H. Miller, clerk of the Ohio supreme court, who in a letter Thursday instructed the local prosecutor to take no more steps pending the consideration by the higher court of a supplementary application for rehearing to take place when the court convenes in October, was indicated Friday when Sears instructed Sheriff George Davenport to levy on personal property of Oberlander's.

Hand made his latest move to prove his innocence when a local attorney received from him yesterday a letter aproved and censored at the penitentiary, claiming that one William Lindsay, now a convict in Virginia state prison, is identical in looks and description of Wilbur Hand and that Lindsay is accused of bank robbery in Pennsylvania where the name of Wilbur Hand was linked shortly after his escape from a Washington, D. C., jail. Hand suggests that the picture of Lindsay be shown to E. B. Beal cashier of the robbed Galion bank, who identified Hand as one of the robbers.

Early Friday afternoon Deputy Sheriffs Arthur Stuckert and Otto Steiger made a levy on all equipment and furnishing in the Highway hotel and the Highway grill, property of H. N. Oberlander, as another step towards collection of the $25,000 bond given by Oberlander and George Kinsel for Wilbur Hand.

When approached by the deputies H. N. Oberlander made no comment but handed over two master keys which they used in examining all equipment in the hotel's 67 rooms.

The equipment will be advertised for public auction Monday. If, after an estimate of value on the equipment is made, Oberlander desires to give a bond that the chattels will remain at the hotel until the time of the sale, the hotel will be allowed to remain in operation, it was announced

CHINESE REDS ON RUN NATIONALISTS SAY

Government Leaders See Strife at Turning Point in Their Favor.

By The Associated Press

SHANGHAI, Aug. 16—Nationalist government leaders, encouraged by a series of successes against rebel armies and Communists seeking to overthrow the regime, said today the turning point in China's civil war had been reached.

President Chiang Kai-Shek, announcing northern rebels had been driven from Tsinan, capital of Shantung, predicted speedy evacuation by rebels of Honan province as well, and forecast quick capture by nationalists of the strategic cities of Kaifeng and Chengchow.

Nationalist military headquarters at Nanking announced government troops entered Tsinan yesterday at 2 p. m. and that a division was patrolling the city. Conditions there were said to be quiet.

Chiang said large quantities of munitions were abandoned by northerners fleeing from Tsinan and were seized by the nationalists.

The situation in Kiangsi province was not so favorable to the government. Rebels and Communists in the southern province were said to be continuing their depredations of months past.

OHIO YOUTHS' TRIAL NEAR FINAL STAGE

State Prepares To Rest Case in Murder Hearing in Nevada Court.

By The Associated Press

PIOCHE, Nev., Aug. 16—The state prepared to rest today in the first degree murder trial of Kenneth Carter and Joseph Morlock, Jr., of Cleveland, O., alleged slayers of Herbert Hulse, mining prospector.

The prosecution had only two witnesses left to call. They were Pioche bank employes who cashed an $800 check which the two youths used in returning to Ohio. The state claims the checks was forged on the signature of Morlock's father, who was killed a short time after Hulse.

Young Morlock was expected to be the first defense witness in an effort to show that the two youths killed Hulse when he threatened them with a gun.

Judge William E. Orr yesterday ruled that the alleged confession of Carter could be admitted as evidence. The day before a confession which authorities said they had obtained from Morlock was admitted. State witnesses also testified that the defendants were in the vicinity at the time of the double-killing last Dec. 23

Morlock and Carter are scheduled to go on trial Monday for the killing of Morlock's father, but their present case is not expected to reach the jury before Tuesday.

MOVES TO RELIEVE HAY SHORTAGE HERE

Fear Winter Supply of Forage Will Be Exhausted as Result of Drouth.

On account of an expected shortage in the local supply of hay owing to the unusual amount already being used because of the long drouth, the Marion County Farm Bureau is locating an available supply of hay that may be shipped in to supply the farmers of this county, Paul Smith, local manager of the farm bureau said today.

He said that insofar as he had been able to ascertain there had been no farmers forced to dispose of stock due to a shortage of feed but in the near future the supply of hay is expected to be greatly reduced. The long drouth has burned the pastures until they are useless as feeding grounds and many farmers are already feeding their winter supply of hay to herds.

Smith says that the hay which is shipped in through the cooperation of the Farm Bureau will be done without profit to the Farm Bureau.

PARTIES PLAN CONVENTIONS

Two State Gatherings To Be Held Late in August or Early in September.

BY JOHN P. BIEHN
Associated Press Staff Writer

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 16—Conventions of the major parties in Ohio to decide the platforms on which they hope to elect their candidates will be held the latter part of August and the first of September, according to tentative plans outlined by party leaders following Tuesday's primary at which nominees were chosen.

Ohio electors are assured of one thing in the election campaign—a wet and dry fight on the senatorial contest. Robert J. Bulkley of Cleveland, former congressman and attorney, became the Democratic nominee for the office by downing four opponents. Bulkley was nominated on a platform for repeal of the 18th amendment.

Opponent Is Dry

His opponent in November is Senator Roscoe C. McCulloch of Canton, a pronounced dry, behind whom the Anti-Saloon league is expected to muster its forces.

Whether a wet plank will be inserted in the Democratic state platform is undetermined but party leaders indicated that there would be none. A meeting of candidates after the primary decided that Henry G. Brunner, state chairman of the executive committee, should preside at the state convention as temporary chairman. The convention will be held primarily the last week of August.

On the Republican side U. S. Senator Simeon D. Fess, chairman of the national executive committee, will act as chairman and is expected to write the plank of the state platform dealing with national issues. The convention probably will be early in September.

White Has Large Majority

Wilbur M. White, editor of the Toledo Times, won the Republican congressional nomination over W. W. Chalmers, incumbent dry, by a huge majority on a platform advocating prohibition repeal. His victory, in the home district of Postmaster General Walter F. Brown, strategist of the Hoover administration, was considered by political observers as a change of sentiment on the part of the voters towards a liberalization of the Volstead law and the prohibition amendment. White opposes Scott Stahl, Toledo Democrat, in November. Stahl has announced himself in favor of repeal of the 18th amendment.

CHAMP TO DEFEND TITLE HERE SEPT. 1

JACK REYNOLDS TO WRESTLE MAIN BOUT ON LABOR DAY CARD

Three-Event Show at Crystal Lake Sponsored by Convention Committee of Marion; Is Civic Undertaking, and Has Backing of Local Organizaztions.

BY BOB ELLIOTT

Jack Reynolds, world's welterweight wrestling champion, will defend his title against Yaqui Joe, Mexican mat star, in the main-go of an all-star wrestling card booked for Crystal Lake park on Labor day. Reynolds and Yaqui Joe will go to the best two out of three falls with no time limit.

Two other bouts between headliners of the wrestling game are on this card, which is being sponsored by the convention committee of the city of Marion, working in the interests of the community. Proceeds from the show will be used to aid in bringing conventions to Marion and for general community advertising purposes in bringing the name of Marion before the general public. C. A. Kluuk is chairman of the committee.

Backed Well

The undertaking has the support of every local organization, including the Junior Chamber of Commerce, Merchants Retail bureau and Rotary and Kiwanis clubs. This makes the show a unified civic activity with the backing of all civic groups.

The wrestling show will climax a full day of music, speeches, and entertainment of all kinds at the park. An address by Governor Myers Y. Cooper will precede the wrestling show in the afternoon.

The groan and grunt show will get under way at 8 p. m. with a one-fall match between Jack Gorman and Achu, Chinese star who gained fame while playing in the backfield of the University of Dayton football team. Achu was also noted as one of the outstanding long distance runners of the middle west while he was in college. This bout will have a time limit of 30 minutes.

Gorman lost a match to Charley Pesek, brother of the Nebraska Tigerman, in Columbus last Wednesday when he was disqualified after 14 minutes of wrestling. Both Achu and Gorman boast triumphs over some of the toughest boys in their class.

Banaski-Wolf

In the second match, which will go one fall with a time limit of a half hour, Joe Banaski will tackle Frank Wolf of Australia. In Wolf Joe will meet one of the toughest foes he has ever met. These light-heavies are expected to come close to eclipsing the main go event. If Banaski can get his flying holds working against Wolf he'll stand a good chance of carrying off the decision before the 30 minutes are up.

Reynolds and his Mexican opponent will weigh in before the Marion Boxing Commission at 3 p. m. the day of the show. Each man must be under 147 pounds at this time.

The crafty welter champ, although getting up in years as wrestlers go, is still throwing off the attack of youth through his long knowledge of cunning on the mat. Last Wednesday in the headliner of Al Haft's show at Columbus he defeated Hi Sharmon, sensation young westerner for the second time in two weeks.

Met Before

Reynolds copped the first and third falls, taking the first with a crotch and slam, and the deciding fall with his dreaded leg split. The latter hold is one of the most deadly in wrestling and Reynolds is its best exponent. It is this same leg split that is likely to prove the downfall of Yaqui Joe here.

Joe has met Reynolds before and although never having defeated him has given him some mighty interesting evenings. Whether he can turn the trick here is problematical but may be done.

MANAGER TINKER

Joe Tinker, famous member of the "Tinker to Evers to Chance" trio of the old Chicago Cubs, is the new manager of the Jersey City International league club.

GOOD COMBINE

Alonzo Stagg Coaches with Son at Quarter.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 16—Amos Alonzo Stagg, Sr., was 68 years old today—and was just as eager to begin work with his thirty-ninth University of Chicago football squad, as he was when he assumed charge of athletics on the Midway in 1892.

"The old man" perhaps was a little more eager than ever, in contemplating his work, because his son, Paul, with a year of varsity experience, probably will be the Maroons' regular quarterback.

Those up and coming young gentlemen from the Kappa Alpha Phi fraternity completed the list of entrants in the Little World Series this year by winning the Commercial league pennant yesterday afternoon when they took a close, yea very close, 3 to 2 decision from the Prospect Firemen. A two run rally in the fourth gave Roy Rice a two run lead and he held it unto the bitter end.

Prospect opened the scoring by shoving one across in the first inning on Howser's triple and a sacrifice fly by Mounts. The "Kaps" evened things up in the second when Bill Woods got on through an error and made the journey around the paths.

Close Decision

Woods then started the fourth with a bingle but H. Geissler forced him at second. Then on a close play at home plate Geissler scored when Haflich hit. The decision at the plate where Bill Wiley was umpiring was plenty close but as is usual in matters of this sort the umpire can't lose. Pete then followed Geissler across with the winning run of the game.

Prospect rallied in the fifth but could only shove across one run. T. Lauer scored Mounts with a hit to center but was out trying to stretch it into a double, Woods to G. Geissler.

Both teams collected four hits, Baldauf getting a double and Howser a triple for the only extra-base socks.

The Stars lost another hair-rising battle to the Serv-U-Wel Grocers by a 3 to 2 score on President's Field. The Grocers did the first scoring in the fifth frame when Claude Jerew hit for two bases into right center scoring Conkle and Walters. The Stars scored once in the sixth on a walk and an error.

Misses Third

In the first of the seventh Henry reached first on an error and Bob Tuttle connected with a long smash into left that enabled him to make the circuit with Henry ahead of him. However Umpire Keller called him out for missing third base. The Grocers then won the game in the last of the seventh on a walk to Marshall and a long hit by Stineman. Both teams got the same number of hits while the Stars had 10 men left on bases to the Grocers' six.

Steam Shovel clinched third place, whatever that means, by blanking the Excavator nine, 6 to 0. The "Diggers" scored three times in the first and three times in the seventh for all their runs. Gilmore pitched nice ball and got good support in the intervening five innings.

K. of P. played around with Company B, finally ending up by scoring 13 to 4 win in six innings. Kellogg gave up six hits while the Pythians collected a mere dozen and a half of Hickman. Kellogg whiffed seven striking out the side in the second.

SPORT RAMBLINGS

BY BOB ELLIOTT

THE regular recreation season will come to a close next week with games scheduled for every evening. Monday, Forest Lawn and Christians meet at Lincoln and the Isaly Dairy All-Stars play the Hamilton Red Feathers of Crestline at Garfield. Tuesday is the battle for the cellar championship of the First Church loop between Christians and Epworth Juniors at Garfield. Serv-U-Wel and Company B play at Lincoln and Calvary and K. of P. meet on President's Field. Wednesday's only tilt is an exhibition game between Epworth No. 1 and Forest Lawn at Garfield. Thursday is last week's scheduled Industrial games and Friday is Prospect vs. Company B at Lincoln Park.

• • •

With all four of the league winners now decided the fans are starting the annual task of trying to name the Little World Series winner. That's about as easy as figuring out a way for Company B to win the Commercial league pennant. Erie Roundhouse is our first choice for the city championship with the Kappas and Calvary both furnishing strong opposition. Lee Street seems a little bit outclassed but without a doubt is one of the strongest teams ever to represent the Monday night league in the series play. Drawings for the games will be made Monday evening at the Y. M. C. A., and will be announced in Tuesday's Star.

• • •

AT this time the umpires for the series will also be chosen by Bill Harruff, E. B. McCoy, Sam Sharrock, and Pete Haflich, the four managers of the pennant winners. This is one of the most important of the preseries tasks and one that should call for a great deal of attention from the pilots. Norris Crissinger and Paul Rice seem sure choices but who the third and alternate choices will be is still an open question. While on the subject of World Series it might be a good idea for the commission to take up the suggestion of starting the games at 6 instead of 6:15 p. m. It's getting dark early now and—in case of an overtime game there wouldn't be a chance of playing it off.

• • •

The wrestling show announced in today's Star for Labor Day at Crystal Lake deserves the backing of every sport fan. The undertaking is purely a civic affair with all the proceeds to go towards bringing conventions to Marion and putting the name of our city before the public. The main-go event which will see Jack Reynolds defending his world's welterweight title against Yaqui Joe is one of the best matches that could have been arranged for the card. Reynolds' ability is well known here while the Mexican has given him plenty of opposition in previous matches. It should be plenty rough and entertaining.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

Danny Taylor, Cubs—Double in tenth defeated Robins 4 to 3.

Bill Terry, Giants—Led Giants' assault on Reds with single, double and home run.

Adam Comorosky, Pirates—Tripled in tenth to give Pittsburgh even break in double header with Phillies.

CUBS INCREASE LEAD BY TAKING THIRD OF SERIES FROM ROBINS

Danny Taylor Breaks Up Scrap Between Luque, Root in Tenth.

If the Chicago Cubs are going to win the National league pennant again this season, the time is at hand for them to strike the deciding blows of the battle.

By virtue of their 4 to 3 victory in yesterday's ten-inning struggle which closed the series against Brooklyn, the Cubs are out ahead by two full games. Today they open a five-game series with the Phillies.

The final struggle which put the Cubs into their commanding position was all that could be expected of two teams that were fighting for the top. From start to finish it provided one thrill after another for the overflow crowd of 45,000 and it ended in a blaze of glory for Danny Taylor, substitute outfielder, who broke up the struggle in the tenth inning with a drive into the crowd standing in the outfield.

While the two leading contenders were mauling each other about in Chicago, the New York Giants came up into a position menacing to either one of them by trouncing the Cincinnati Reds, 5 to 0, for their fifth victory in six games. This triumph made easy by Carl Hubbell's four hit pitching and Bill Terry's timely clouting.

With the entire American league schedule washed out by the rain it remained for the elder circuit to supply all the day's baseball news. Philadelphia and Pittsburgh divided a hard-fought double header. The Phillies took the first clash, 7 to 5, as Fred Brickell, a former Pirate, walloped two singles and a triple and scored three runs. Pittsburgh went ten innings for a 3 to 2 triumph in the second.

The St. Louis Cardinals picked up their winning streak where Boston broke it Thursday, defeating the Braves, 8 to 4. Home runs by Hafey and Watkins featured the game.

Macon Express Says He Can Beat Any Heavy in the Ring, Including Primo, Sharkey and Maxie.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16 — Young Bill Stribling is back from Europe with Phil Scott's scalp dangling from his belt and a gleam in his eyes that bodes no good for the rest of the heavyweights who think they can fight some.

Traveling alone, a young man of 25 who has suddenly developed a punch and a desire to use it on all the heavyweights he can reach, the curly-headed Macon boy came in on the liner Aquitania yesterday with an English brindle bull pup "Scrap" and a bad left hand.

Bill would like to get rid of the injured paw but nothing could pry him away from the bull pup, an ingratiating little fellow four weeks old, gift of a British admirer.

The bad hand, broken in three places five months ago, will keep Young Stribling out of the heavyweight picture he now dominates for the next six weeks at least. Although the breaks have healed, the hand is so tender that injections of novocaine were necessary in both his one-round knockout in Chicago of Otto Von Porat and his two-round victory over Scott.

Had Great Time

"I had a great time," Stribling announced. "I wish Scott could have been a better fighter but that couldn't be helped.

"I knew I was going to knock him out in two rounds just like I told you before I left. I'm punching harder than ever before in my life. I'm heavier. I'm old enough now so that I feel that I can slug it out with any heavyweight in the game. That goes for Jack Sharkey, Primo Carnera, and Max Schmeling. I've been boxing nine and one-half years and now I'm going to do some fighting.

"First, I want to fight Sharkey," he said. "I'll knock him out the next time we meet even though he did send me a nice cable of congratulations after my match with Scott. Carnera is tougher than most of you think and I'd like another shot at him. Both Sharkey and Carnera I believe the better heavyweights than Max Schmeling, the champion."

Sarazen Heads Field in St. Paul Tourney with 67

By International News Service

KELLER GOLF COURSE, ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 16—With Gene Sarazen, United States open champion in 1922, leading the field, the final 18 holes of qualifying play in the $10,000 St. Paul open gold tournament were to be contested here today.

Sarazen finished five under par yesterday with a score of 67. Behind him were Johnny Farrell of New York and Otto Hackbarth, with 68 each. Harry Cooper of Glen Ellyn, Ill., Johnny Goodman of Omaha and Tony Manero of White Plains, N. Y., were next with 69 apiece. Goodman headed the amateurs.

No matter how you try, you can't make some people feel at home in your company. They are either patronizing you or fear that you are patronizing them.

Sharkey Gives Up Carnera Fight for Campolo Scrap

BY HYPE IGOE
I. N. S. Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Aug. 16—Jack Sharkey looked in on the Bootsie Carnera bout at Chicago, turned around and walked right out again.

He won't fight Bootsie on September 29. Instead he is going to cuff about with Victorio Campolo for 15 rounds at the Yankee Stadium on September 25 for Madison Square Garden.

And all because of a lost clause, hidden in the Schmeling contract but "found" yes-tiddy.

The making of the match came about in a peculiar way, knocking Broadway right into the middle of the car tracks.

It was thought, yesterday morning, that Mike Malloy of Chicago had hog-tied Sharkey and Carnera for one of the greatest attractions of the whole year in fact.

Mike had made a speedy trip to Chi in order to gather up a mere $100,000 with which to bind the Sharkey end of the bargain. The chances are that Mike was on his way to Boston with the money when Madison Square Garden, through its "legal staff," suddenly discovered that the corporation held an "option" on Sharkey's services as part of Sharkey's agreement made with the garden folks when he signed to meet Max Schmeling for the world's title.

The garden wanted that Sharkey and Campolo match and wanted it badly, since they needed a winner to fight Stribling at Miami next February.

The terms? Well, doggone, that's a secret. Buckley told me before he left for Boston that Bruen had offered Sharkey 50 per cent of the gate to meet Campolo.

You can set it down in the band of your old straw Kelly that Little Jack is getting that 50 per cent.

BATTLE FOR TROPHY

By International News Service

CLEVELAND, Aug. 16—Baseball teams of the Al Koran Shrine and Al Sirat Grotto were to battle for the Ralph K. Rex trophy in the fifth annual game at league park here today. Former big leaguers and present sandlot players are included in the lineups.

Gift of Money to Star May Hurt Standing

By The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., Aug. 16—Helen Wills Moody today branded as "perfectly absurd" the suggestion she would jeopardize her amateur tennis standing by accepting a $20,000 legacy bequeathed to her in the will of the late James D. Phelan, former United States senator.

The legacy was one of numerous bequests revealed when the former senator's will was filed yesterday, disposing of an estate estimated at $10,000,000.

Immediately the question arose in tennis circles whether Mrs. Moody, women's national champion, would endanger her amateur status by accepting the gift, which the will said was "in appreciation of her winning the tennis championship for California."

"It couldn't possibly have anything to do with my amateur standing, and I think the suggestion is in extremely bad taste," said Mrs. Moody.

"I am very sorry that any such controversy should arise. There should be nothing said about it whatever. I do not wish it, and I am sure Senator Phelan would not have liked it."

A man may attain success so late in life that he is half mad at the world for recognizing him so tardily.

Sharp Convulsions Today, Set in Motion by Shorts, Keep Market Level.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 16—Sharp convulsions in today's stock market, set in motion by yesterday's stampede of shorts, left the general level of share prices about where they were last night.

Heavy profit-taking and renewed bear selling caused a sharp dip in the first half-hour, which gave shorts who had stood aside yesterday a chance to cover at more favorable levels. Hangover short covering and further efforts of bulls to extend the rally more than cancelled the early gains but the list sold off again just before the close, and final quotations showed gains and losses about evenly balanced.

Shorts appeared to have been caught in a few of the less active shares, and motor products shot up 8 points, International Business Machines 6, Columbian Carbon 4, and Norf. & and Western 3.

U. S. Steel, after selling off 1¼, rallied to close 1 higher, and Eastman and New York Central gained about a point. Radio, after dropping 2, closed off 1¼, and General Electric, American Telephone, Byers, American Can, General Motors and Goodyear lost about a point. Vanadium and Case lost 1¾. The closing tone was heavy. Total sales approximated 1,000,000 shares. Trading was light and highly professional.

News from the steel industry at the end of the week was less discouraging. Leading plants in the Youngstown area are expected to maintain operations at about the present rate during the next week. Steel scrap at Chicago was a little firmer, after earlier firmness noted at Pittsburgh. On the whole, however, sentiment in the steel industry lacked the optimism of a month ago, for this is the time of year when operations normally increase.

Motherless Deer Will Be Raised on Bottle

SANTA CRUZ, CAL.—When a stranger to deer habits and deer found what he thought was a motherless doe in Big Basin park, he took it along in his machine, later presenting it to Mrs. Sue Bain of Santa Cruz.

Mrs. Bain at once turned the deer over to Game Warden F. J. McDermitt and the deer was taken back to the park and will be raised on a bottle. A young deer abandoned for over 24 hours by its mother is never reclaimed and had not Mrs. Bain given it to the game warden it would have died.

CORN SCORES EARLY GAINS

Recover from Downturns, Resulting from Rain in Several States.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 16—Corn scored early advances in price today, despite downturns which at the start resulted from rain in part of Nebraska, Kansas, Iowa, and Illinois. Scarcity of corn offerings on the initial declines encouraged buyers to become aggressive. Wheat swayed with corn, and was influenced temporarily by the fact that Liverpool wheat quotations failed to reflect yesterday's rise on this side of the Atlantic. Opening ⅜c off to ⅛c up, corn later sagged all around, but then mounted to well above yesterday's finish. Wheat started unchanged to ⅜c lower; underwent a moderate general setback, and subsequently recovered.

Selling broadened out in the corn market today when prices bulged. As a consequence early gains were at times much more than wiped out, holders showing a disposition to snatch profits. Besides, indications pointed to further probable moisture in the corn belt tonight and tomorrow.

Acting as a weight on the wheat market were bearish crop advices from Australia and India as well as apparent slackness of export demand for wheat from North America. An official estimate put the 1930 wheat crop of New South Wales at 70,000,000 bushels compared with 34,000,000 bushels last season and 49,000,000 bushels the year previous. The final estimate of India's crop was 387,000,000 bushels against 318,000,000 bushels last season and a five year average of 328,000,000 bushels. Oats followed wheat and corn. Provisions were responsible to firmness of hog values

DEMAND FOR LABOR GREATER IN JULY

Outside Work Brings Improvement, Is Federal Report; Prices Decline.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16—An increase during July in the demand for unskilled workers and farm help was reported today by the department of labor together with a slight decline in the wholesale price index.

The employment bureau of the department reported outdoor labor had been increased materially by highway construction, installation of natural gas pipe lines, telephone and other utility construction as well as farm labor, but that closed industrial plants and part time operation continued to affect many workers. Building construction work remained below the level of previous years.

The statistics section reported a price index decline of 2.8 from June to a mark of 84 for July. This figure, based on the purchasing power of the 1926 dollar, gave the July 1930 dollar a comparative value of $1.19. Of 550 commodities compared, 57 showed increases for the month while 236 declined and 257 remained unchanged.

Farm products and food led the decline with 6 1-2 and 4 1-2 per cent respectively.

PRIMARY BRINGS OUT 36 PER CENT OF VOTE

Ballots Cast Total Nearly Same as Those Cast in 1928 Primary.

Marion county's primary vote Tuesday was nearly as large as that cast two years ago during the Hoover-Smith presidential year primary, the official figures compiled following the primary and released today by the election board indicate.

Total vote cast in the county was 6,428 as compared to slightly more than 6,500 two years ago. This is a high average of 36 per cent. of those eligible to vote, according to C. G. Ritzler, election board deputy clerk.

Smith Is Nominee

The total vote represents 3,612 Republicans and 2,816 Democrats, the official figures show.

Dr. Kenneth Smith won the Democratic nomination for coroner with a vote of 474 as compared to 187 for Dr. J. M. Ruckman of LaRue, the only other avowed candidate. Figures for this office were not announced in the unofficial list made public Wednesday due to the fact that all names were written in and their tabulation was difficult, although Dr. Smith was conceded the nomination. Eleven other physicians in the county received scattered votes for the nomination.

The closest race in the Democratic ranks, official figures for which party were announced today, was that between Ray G. Smallwood and Edward F. Tittelbaugh for the nomination for treasurer. Smallwood's official vote was 1,369, a 202 advantage over Tittelbaugh's 1,167.

Show Little Change

Official votes for the Democratic nomination for sheriff were practically the same as the unofficial tabulation, Charles C. Fye winning easily. He polled 1,335 in the six-way fight, with Arthur A. Huffman second with 355. William P. Phelps, Millard A. Baldwin, George W. Smith and Earl A. DeBolt followed in the order named.

Clarence O. Hart scored an almost 400-vote margin over F. Harland LeMasters, his opponent for the Democratic nomination for recorder for the full term, the votes being 1,342 and 956, respectively. For the short terms, the votes were 1,382 and 988, respectively.

The Stars Say

For Sunday, August 17.

Sunday's horoscope, although holding augury for a very lively and possibly exciting day, may not be considered a fortunate or happy one. In both private contacts in employment and relations with superiors and those in authority adverse inflences prevail. It would be well to center on cultural preoccupations and not invite hostility in any direction.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a very lively and eventful year, with some phases of business moving rapidly and successfully, but there is a menace of discord and danger for those in the employment of others or those seeking favors or advancement from superiors. Personal affiliations may also disturb or disappoint.

A child born on this day may be enterprising, aggressive and versatile, but it may do better for itself than in the employment of others, as such relations are adverse.

• • •

For Monday, August 18.

Monday's astrological chart holds figures of promise for happy and profitable conditions in all domestic, social, artistic and romantic affiliations and activities. These may engage the attention, but are accompanied by a menace of duplicity, craft or subterfuge, that may also be a hostile factor in business. With such prospect met with vigilance all affairs may prosper and give comfort.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of active and prosperous personal as well as business conditions, with pleasant and profitable associations in all directions, but they are beset by a menace of fraud, duplicity and subtle dealings, which they should meet with vigilance and resistance, as these may arise where least suspected.

A child born on this day may have splendid equipment for a successful, prosperous and happy life, but it may be subject and inclined to subtle, shrewd and peculiar actions.

IT'S WISE TO CHEVROLET CHOOSE A SIX
Announcing a new production record
2,000,000 Chevrolet Sixes now on the road
Since January, 1929, Chevrolet has produced and sold over 2,000,000 six-cylinder automobiles—nearly five times as many as any other manufacturer has ever built in an equal length of time.
These 2,000,000 buyers have chosen Chevrolet because it offers many desirable qualities not obtainable in any other car so low in price—
—the smoothness, silence and flexibility of a modern six-cylinder engine—the comfort and roadability of a modern, full-length chassis—and the style, safety and distinction of bodies by Fisher.
Yet, despite these fine car advantages, the Chevrolet Six is unusually economical. Its gas, oil, tire and upkeep economy is unsurpassed. And any model can be bought for a small down payment and easy monthly terms! Come in today. Learn for yourself why two million buyers have agreed—"it's wise to choose a Six."
